

Unit 7: Worksheet 2

1. Calculate the gravitational field strength on the moon, which has a radius of 1.74×10^6 m, and a mass of 7.36×10^{22} kg.
2. How much would a 1500 kg satellite weigh at the surface of the moon? Do it two ways.

Assume that the diagram below represents the orbit of the satellite around the moon at an altitude of 100 km. (make sure to use SI Units!)

3. Construct a force diagram of the satellite in orbit.
4. Demonstrate the direction of the acceleration, if any, by means of a motion map.
5. What is the radius of the orbit of the satellite? (radius of moon + altitude of orbit)

Carver, Neil P. Chue Hong, George K. Thiruvathukal, 2016-11-03 Software Engineering for Science provides an in depth collection of peer reviewed chapters that describe experiences with applying software engineering practices to the development of scientific software It provides a better understanding of how software engineering is and should be practiced and which software engineering practices are effective for scientific software The book starts with a detailed overview of the Scientific Software Lifecycle and a general overview of the scientific software development process It highlights key issues commonly arising during scientific software development as well as solutions to these problems The second part of the book provides examples of the use of testing in scientific software development including key issues and challenges The chapters then describe solutions and case studies aimed at applying testing to scientific software development efforts The final part of the book provides examples of applying software engineering techniques to scientific software including not only computational modeling but also software for data management and analysis The authors describe their experiences and lessons learned from developing complex scientific software in different domains About the Editors Jeffrey Carver is an Associate Professor in the Department of Computer Science at the University of Alabama He is one of the primary organizers of the workshop series on Software Engineering for Science <http://www.SE4Science.org/workshops> Neil P Chue Hong is Director of the Software Sustainability Institute at the University of Edinburgh His research interests include barriers and incentives in research software ecosystems and the role of software as a research object George K Thiruvathukal is Professor of Computer Science at Loyola University Chicago and Visiting Faculty at Argonne National Laboratory His current research is focused on software metrics in open source mathematical and scientific software

Guide to Advanced Empirical Software Engineering Forrest Shull, Janice Singer, Dag I. K. Sjøberg, 2007-11-21 Empirical studies have become an important part of software engineering research and practice Ten years ago it was rare to see a conference or journal article about a software development tool or process that had empirical data to back up the claims Today in contrast it is becoming more and more common that software engineering conferences and journals are not only publishing but eliciting articles that describe a study or evaluation Moreover a very successful conference International Symposium on Empirical Software Engineering and Measurement journal Empirical Software Engineering and organization International Software Engineering Research Network have all evolved in the last 10 years that focus solely on this area As a further illustration of the growth of empirical software engineering a search in the articles of 10 software engineering journals showed that the proportion of articles that used the term empirical software engineering doubled from about 6% in 1997 to about 12% in 2006 While empirical software engineering has seen such substantial growth there is not yet a reference book that describes advanced techniques for running studies and their application This book aims to fill that gap The chapters are written by some of the top international empirical software engineering researchers and focus on the practical knowledge necessary for conducting reporting and using empirical methods in software engineering The book is intended to serve as a standard reference Government Reports Announcements & Index, 1995 Co-Engineering and Participatory Water Management Katherine A. Daniell, 2012-05-31 Effective participatory water management requires effective co engineering the collective process whereby organisational decisions are made on how to bring stakeholders together This trans disciplinary book highlights the challenges involved in the collective initiation design implementation and evaluation of water planning and management processes It demonstrates how successful management requires the effective handling of two participatory processes the stakeholder water management process and the co engineering process required to organise this The book provides practical methods for supporting improved participatory processes including the application of theory and models to aid decision making International case studies of these applications from Australia Europe and all over the world including Africa are used to examine negotiations and leadership approaches and their effects on the participatory stakeholder processes This international review of participatory water governance forms an important resource for academic researchers in hydrology environmental management and water policy and also practitioners and policy makers working in water management
