This eclectic collection of essays focuses on a number of intriguing issues in translation some of these polemic essays challenge certain widespread beliefs and practices for example the belief that humor is untranslatable the assumption that translations are always inferior to the originals the spread of translations that are more impenetrable to the target audience than the originals ever were to the source language audience above all the notion that translation is a marginal rather than a major area of study indeed as one essay suggests translation may represent a model of thought and translating a mode of thinking These essays also consider the international trade in translations the ratio of translations out of the language and of translations into the language as a possible index to historical development analyze the humor that can be translated as well as the humor that cannot be translated uncover the implicit indicators of time and place in traditional Chinese poetry offering thereby a study in comparative deictics examine the hermeneutics of Old Testament exegeses which unlike the modern world privileged the oral over the written word discuss the subtle but definable differences between translations that appropriate previous versions by way of allusion and quotation and translations that merely plagiarize In the final section entitled Divertissements Eugene Eoyang provides an exposition of his translation of a poem first published in the People's Daily and since banned that contained a hidden and decidedly hostile acrostic in which the challenge was not only to convey the original meaning but also to preserve the disguise of the original meaning in the Chinese text The translation appeared in The New York Times He also offers a wry typology of translators comparing them metaphorically and paronomastically to different species of birds in a concluding coda he excavates the place names in bicultural and multilingual Hong Kong uncovering not only translations and transliterations but also heteronyms different names for the same place as well as remarkably phononyms names where the pronunciation of a word in one language happens to coincide with a word in another language with the same meaning The result is a provocative potpourri of fascinating insights into the cultural and semiotic complexities of translation that will surely interest students of translation literature linguistics and history as well as the informed general reader

Literature and Music in the Atlantic World, 1767-1867 Catherine Jones,2014-07-16 This new study looks at the relationship of rhetoric and music in the era s intellectual discourses texts and performance cultures principally in Europe and North America Catherine Jones begins by examining the attitudes to music and its performance by leading figures of the American Enlightenment and Revolution notably Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson She also looks at the attempts of Francis Hopkinson William Billings and others to harness the Orphean power of music so that it should become a progressive force in the creation of a new society She argues that the association of rhetoric and music that reaches back to classical Antiquity acquired new relevance and underwent new theorisation and practical application in the American Enlightenment in light of revolutionary Atlantic conditions Jones goes on to consider changes in the relationship of rhetoric and music in the nationalising milieu of the nineteenth century the connections of literature music and music theory to changing models of subjectivity and Romantic appropriations of Enlightenment visions of the public ethical function of music The Musician ,1902 The Critic ,1893
