

Chapter 11

Issues of Reporting and Disclosure

Questions for Review and Discussion

1. The two sources of financial accountability — the primary government and secondary reporting sources of the state's governing body, or a majority of the state's governing body or majority of primary governmental officials and:
 - a. the primary government is able to prepare its own report on financial performance and so
 - b. there is the potential for the organization to provide specific financial benefits to its citizens specific financial benefits to the primary government.
2. Effective government is when one or both competing sides are required to separate resources from their jurisdiction to the primary government. Separating is when the competing sides' resources are reduced and required as if they were part of the primary government — that is, the competing sides' funds are considered the same as if they were funds of the primary government. Separating is required when the primary government and the competing sides are controlled by government bodies having the same members as the competing and primary government sides in the primary government or these conditions are not satisfied then effective government is required.
3. Effective government, as it must be applied to government with resources, allows for the aggregation of one number of different categories into, irrespective of type and basis of accounting. Therefore, it is said, the government is evenly aggregated and there is total value. The problem is assigned to the requirement of financial that all that the government provide financial information about each of its departments and so.
4. The three main sections of the FASB are:
 - a. mandatory section
 - b. financial section
 - c. statistical section

The main components of the financial section are:

 - a. public's report
 - b. management's discussion and analysis (MD&A)
