Global health issues of aflatoxins in food and agriculture: Challenges and opportunities Mehdi Razzaghi-Abyaneh, Perng-Kuang Chang, Masoomeh Shams-Ghahfarokhi, Mahendra Rai, 2015-06-18 Aflatoxins are a group of polyketide mycotoxins that are produced mainly by members of the genus Aspergillus. Production of these toxic secondary metabolites is closely related to fungal development. Keller et al 2005, Jamali et al 2012. Contamination of food feed and agricultural commodities by aflatoxins poses enormous economic and serious health concerns because these chemicals are highly carcinogenic and can directly influence the structure of DNA. The resulting genetic defects can lead to fetal misdevelopment and miscarriages. Aflatoxins are also known to suppress immune systems. Razzaghi Abyaneh et al 2013. In a global context, aflatoxin contamination is a constant concern between the 35N and 35S latitude where developing countries are mainly situated. With expanding boundaries of developing countries, aflatoxin contamination has become a persistent problem to those emerging areas. Shams Ghahfarokhi et al 2013. The continuing threat by aflatoxin contamination of food feed and agricultural commodities to the world population has made aflatoxin research one of the most exciting and rapidly developing study areas of microbial toxins. The present research topic includes six review articles, three mini reviews, and four original research articles. Contributors highlight current global health issues arising from aflatoxins and aflatoxigenic fungi and cover important aspects of aflatoxin research including contamination of crops, epidemiology, molecular biology, and management strategies. Special attention is given to fungus-plant host interactions, biodiversity, and biocontrol, sexual recombination in aflatoxigenic Aspergilli, potential biomarkers for aflatoxin exposure in humans, and safe storage programs.

Global Health in Crisis? Mara Linden, 2025-11-18. This book examines global health as a foreign policy issue in Germany, exploring its entanglement with security and economic concerns. Based on an ethnography at the German Federal Foreign Office (FFO) during Covid-19, it explores the emergence of this policy field, its variations in the pandemic moment, and the coordination of vaccine donations as a case study. With global health as a growing concern for governments, security, and foreign policies, and a corresponding academic interest in these developments, this book offers detailed insights into the German context. Germany has been denoted a latecomer but increasingly important actor in global health, and this book focuses on the assemblage of global health and foreign policy in this setting. The unique observation of Covid-19 in the German FFO highlights the crisis as exceptional and non-exceptional at the same time, making visible gaps in global health structures more generally. The vaccine donations during Covid-19 illustrate problematizations and technologies of global health as entangled with security and economic concerns. For anyone interested in global health, both in academia and in the field, this book provides insights into governmental cooperation in the area of global health and foreign policy prior to and during a crisis and allows for conclusions for further developments and/or future crisis moments.
