SECTION A (40 MARKS)

Read the following passage very carefully before you attempt any questions.

Mistakes in spelling, punctuation and grammar may be penalised in any part of the paper

(The following passage is adapted from a combination of extracts from speeches by the late Vice President of Zimbabwe, Cde S.V. Muzenda, and the former Minister of Education, Cde D. Muzumbuka.)

ZIMBABWE NEEDS TO BE A NATION OF THINKERS AND DOERS

1. Our government is clearly set on a reconstruction and development course that has at its core, the quantitative and qualitative improvement in educational provision. The nation's greatest resource is its human element. We therefore, need to develop the youths' immense potential and harness it for the future manpower needs of Zimbabwe. The learners we educate are the future of Zimbabwe and we must tailor their education to service the needs of this country. Therefore, we need to make our curriculum uniquely relevant to our own unique situation.
2. We have so far witnessed a massive expansion in education, particularly in the secondary sector. Such unprecedented expansion was unknown in our country and more is in store for us.
3. However, an increase in numbers alone will not achieve the desired effect. Government holds the view that education must service all sectors of the economy by developing a wide variety of intellectual, social, economic, technical and agricultural skills that are not only saleable and employable in agriculture, commerce, industry, mining, and scientific research but are characterised by a high enterprise capacity that will see the country fully utilising our inherited natural resources. For education to be relevant, it must develop the capacity to produce youths who are academically and practically equipped to man all sectors of our economy. A look at our past and present scenarios will help to underline the significance of our new thrust. Thousands of youths have pursued an academic type of education. True, some have been able to weave their way into various companies and organisations but the majority have ended up jobless and even helpless after graduating at various exit points. They have a lot of irrelevant academic knowledge without expertise in technical, vocational and scientific fields.

Learning a non-native language in a naturalistic environment: Insights from behavioural and neuroimaging research Christos Pliatsikas, Vicky Chondrogianni, 2015-09-02 It is largely accepted in the relevant literature that successful learning of one or more non native languages is affected by a number of factors that are independent of the target language s per se these factors include the age of acquisition AoA of the target language s the type and amount of formal instruction the learners have received as well as the amount of language use that the learners demonstrate Recent experimental evidence suggests that one crucial factor for efficient native like performance in the non native language is the amount of naturalistic exposure or immersion that the learners receive to that language This can be broadly defined as the degree to which language learners use their non native language outside the classroom and for their day to day activities and usually presupposes that the learners live in an environment where their non native language is exclusively or mostly used Existing literature has suggested that linguistic immersion can be beneficial for lexical and semantic acquisition in a non native language as well as for non native morphological and syntactic processing More recent evidence has also suggested that naturalistic learning of a non native language can also have an impact on the patterns of brain activity underlying language processing as well as on the structure of brain regions that are involved expressed as changes in the grey matter structure This Research Topic brings together studies on the effects of learning and speaking a non native language in a naturalistic environment These include more efficient or native like processing in behavioural tasks tapping on language lexicon morphology syntax as well as changes in the brain structure and function as revealed by neuroimaging studies
