Mozambique's Experience In Building A National Extension System:

Mozambique's Experience in Building a National Extension System Helder Gemo, Carl K. Eicher, Solomon Teclemariam, 2005 Agricultural extension services are undergoing rapid change in many countries with a shift in funding and management from the public to the private sector This is especially true in Africa where donors from industrial countries and more recently from the middle income developing countries such as Chile have historically promoted and financed those extension models Currently African nations are being encouraged to import the Farmer Field School extension model which is meeting with some success in Asia Mozambique a former Portuguese colony became independent in 1975 but was wracked by civil war in the 1980s It was unable to establish its public extension service until 1987 The authors analyze the growth and evolution of extension from 1987 to 2004 as provided by public private and NGO sources in Mozambique This work highlights the Ministry of Agriculture's drive to develop and test both local and imported extension models and share its experience with other African countries

Community-based adaptation Hannah Reid, 2017-10-02 Community based adaptation CBA to climate change is based on local priorities needs knowledge and capacities Early CBA initiatives were generally implemented by non government organisations NGOs and operated primarily at the local level Many used bottom up participatory processes to identify the climate change problem and appropriate responses Small localised stand alone initiatives are insufficient to address the scale of challenges climate change will bring however The causes of vulnerability such as market or service access or good governance also often operate beyond the project level Larger organisations and national governments have therefore started to implement broader CBA programmes which provide opportunities to scale up responses and integrate CBA into higher levels of policy and planning This book shows that it is possible for CBA to remain centred on local priorities but not necessarily limited to work implemented at the local level Some chapters address the issue of mainstreaming CBA into government policy and planning processes or into city or sectoral level plans e g on agriculture Others look at how gender and children's issues should be mainstreamed into adaptation planning itself and others describe how tools can be applied and finance delivered for effective mainstreaming This book was published as a special issue of Climate and Development

Empowering smallholder farmers' organizations through non-public extension service providers: A case study and lessons from Mozambique Gêmo, Hélder R., Babu, Suresh Chandra, 2019-02-21 The role and impact of non state extension services providers have not been studied adequately In this paper we assess the performance of the non State extension service provision through farmers organization FOs in Mozambique Using participating methods focused group discussions and key informant interviews we provide an assessment of extension services provision to FOs The result indicates only 3% of the 1264 surveyed FOs were categorized as type A the highest FOs rating scale used by services providers SPs in the three regions of the country Effective monitoring and evaluation regular analytical participatory at field level and close working interaction between the Public Agricultural Extension Services PAES and the SPs were of paramount importance to track the progress made in empowering the FOs SPs pro activeness and competence were critical factors to adequately address the various training needs of the different categories of FOs and local services providers SPs financial autonomy was key to compensate for the delays in the disbursements by the PAES The selection criteria for the participating farmers trainees from targeted FOs makes a difference Younger and more literate farmers including women have shown greater motivation and engagement in the training sessions Outsourcing can be a valuable alternative for the provision of extension services if it targets specific intervention areas for example training for FOs a limited number of activities well defined deliverables including quality and sustainability issues and timelines Post training and post project actions at the policy level and extension services providers are required to contribute to the sustainability of the investment made Based on these findings the paper documents several operational lessons from the implementation of the program

African Smallholders Göran Djurfeldt, Ernest Aryeetey, Aida C. Isinika, 2011 This book investigates how the changed agricultural policy climate affected government policies in the nine countries studied already as part of the preceding project Ethiopia Ghana Kenya Malawi Mozambique Nigeria Tanzania Uganda and Zambia By repeating the cross sectional survey made in over 100 villages in 2002 and converting it into a panel it is possible to trace village and household level effects of agricultural policies and other macro level processes The book consists of 14 chapters most of which revolve around studies on each of the nine case study countries Awakening Africa's Sleeping Giant Michael L. Morris, Hans P. Binswanger-Mikhize, Derek Byerlee, 2009

Awakening Africa's Sleeping Giant explores the feasibility of restoring international competitiveness and growth in African agriculture through the identification of products and production systems that can underpin rapid development of a competitive commercial agriculture Based on a careful examination of the factors that contributed to the successes achieved in Brazil and Thailand as well as comparative analysis of evidence obtained through detailed case studies of three African countries Mozambique Nigeria and Zambia the authors argue that opportunities abound for farmers in Africa to
