

How to Write a Comparative Politics Paper

By Prof. David Meyer, Cedarville University

©2006

Note: This template may also be useful for certain term papers in history, comparative sociology, social work, international relations/international studies, criminal justice, etc. Always ask your professor first whether or not one of the below strategies is acceptable.

1. The Introduction:

Alice: "Would you tell me, please, which way I ought to go from here?"

Cheshire Cat: "That depends a good deal on where you want to get to."

Alice: "I don't know where. . ."

Cheshire Cat: "Then it doesn't matter which way you go!"

—Lewis Carroll, Alice in Wonderland.

There are several different ways to write an introduction, but ALWAYS ANSWER THE "So what?!" QUESTION! In other words, why is this question/problem/case/comparison interesting theoretically, important practically (especially in terms of domestic or foreign policy), counter-intuitive ("man bites dog"), or rivetingly puzzling? i.e. "Here is a case that no current body of literature in comparative politics theory can explain." Or "Iran is interesting per se as a case because it may soon develop nuclear weapons and start a thermonuclear war." Or "Comparing different welfare states may yield key insights for American policy makers seeking to improve the content of and the efficiency of delivery of social-welfare programs."

All but the Story Hook technique should have a clear and concise one-paragraph topic declaration as the first paragraph, or after a description of a problem. Some authors use their entire introduction for laying out the problem, and then they put the topic sentence at the very end of the introduction.

- a. Clearly state the problem and how you intend to solve it, using which theories. Do this in one paragraph.
- b. Pose a question and then state how you will attempt to answer it.
- c. Declare that you are comparing two or more authors' approaches to two or more cases, i.e. see the section below on the Hypothetical Deductive Method.
- d. The Story Hook: Tell an interesting story to get the reader's attention first.
  - i. Then, at the end of the story, clearly state the problem and how you intend to solve it OR
  - ii. Pose a question and then state how you will attempt to answer it.

The club is led by Henry Winter, a brilliant and charismatic young man. Henry is obsessed with Greek mythology and philosophy, and he quickly draws Richard into his world. The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Charles Tavis is a quiet and reserved young man who is deeply in love with Henry. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him. Morrow is a complex and mysterious figure, and he seems to be manipulating the students for his own purposes. As the students become more involved with Morrow, they begin to commit increasingly dangerous acts. The Secret History is a brilliant and gripping novel that will keep you wondering until the very end. The novel is a cautionary tale about the dangers of obsession and the power of evil.
