

4.0 AGENT-SPECIFIC CORRELATIONS

4.1 CORRELATIONS USING U.S. CUSTOMARY UNITS

The maximum pressure developed in an enclosure upon discharge of a clean agent fire extinguishing system is affected by several characteristics of the system itself and the enclosure being protected. Of particular importance are the thermodynamic properties of the agent and the discharge characteristics of the hardware. Each of the following sections contains agent-specific correlations of maximum enclosure pressure in relation to leakage-to-volume ratio - LVR. The correlations were developed from the test program data noted above. The applicability of the correlations to manufacturers' hardware is indicated either as to "All" or to the hardware of specific system manufacturer.

NOTE: The equations, charts and tables published in this guide have a limited range of applicability based on the parametric limitations of the data sets from which they were derived. The table below indicates the applicable limits of design concentration, discharge time and enclosure pressure response for use of this guide. Please note the maximum peak pressure estimates (both positive and negative) based on data obtained for each agent are given in the table below.

WARNING: It is physically possible to develop pressures greater than those covered by this guide during clean agent discharges.

Maximum peak pressure estimates using the equations and tables in this guide should not be extrapolated above the maximum positive and maximum negative values shown in the table below.
