SCIENTIFIC METHOD READING COMPREHENSION

Does coffee actually wake you up?

DATE: _____

Have you ever wondered if coffee really helps people wake up in the morning, or if it's just in their head? That's a great question for using the scientific method! Scientists use this process to investigate mysteries about the world, and it all begins with curiosity—just like this. Once you have a question, the first step is to do some research. You might look up how long it stays in the body, or whether it's been studied before. After researching, it's time to come up with a hypothesis. An educated guess based on what you've learned, a hypothesis might be: "If someone drinks coffee in the morning, they will be more awake compared to someone who doesn't." What you think will happen. Now, you're ready to run the experiment.

To run the experiment, you need two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The control group does not drink coffee in the morning. The experimental group drinks coffee in the morning. The thing you change between the groups is the independent variable. The thing you measure is the dependent variable. You want to keep everything else the same, like what time they sleep.

During the experiment, scientists make observations and record data. Maybe they ask participants to rate their alertness on a reaction-time test. After collecting enough data, the conclusion tells you whether your hypothesis was correct. If the experimental group did better, then maybe your hypothesis was right. If there was much difference, you might have to rethink your hypothesis. That's the power of the scientific method: testing ideas and observing the world around us.

ANSWER KEY

Does coffee actually wake you up?

1. The first step is asking a question.
2. The hypothesis is: "If someone drinks coffee in the morning, then they will feel more awake compared to someone who doesn't."
3. The control group does not drink coffee, the experimental group drinks one cup of coffee.
4. Independent variable: drinking coffee or not. Dependent variable: how awake the person feels or how fast they respond.
5. Observations are important because they help you collect data to support or disprove your hypothesis.

Does an apple a day really keep the doctor away?

1. The students wanted to answer the question: Does an apple a day really keep the doctor away?
2. A hypothesis is an educated guess. In this experiment, the hypothesis was: If someone eats an apple every day, then they will visit the doctor less often than someone who does not.
3. The independent variable was whether or not participants ate an apple every day. The dependent variable was how many times they went to the doctor.
4. The control group did not change their eating habits, while the experimental group ate one apple every day.
5. The students concluded that apples may help a little, but eating one a day does not guarantee fewer doctor visits.

Do video games actually affect your sleep?

1. Moya wanted to know if playing video games before bed helps you get a good night's sleep.
2. A hypothesis is an educated guess. Moya's hypothesis was that playing video games before bed would lead to worse sleep.
3. The control group did not play video games before bed, the experimental group did.
4. The independent variable was playing video games before bed. The dependent
