Microbial Responses to Environmental Changes Jürg B. Logue, Stuart E. G. Findlay, Jérôme Comte, 2016-01-20

Advances in next generation sequencing technologies omics and bioinformatics are revealing a tremendous and unsuspected diversity of microbes both at a compositional and functional level Moreover the expansion of ecological concepts into microbial ecology has greatly advanced our comprehension of the role microbes play in the functioning of ecosystems across a wide range of biomes Super imposed on this new information about microbes their functions and how they are organized environmental gradients are changing rapidly largely driven by direct and indirect human activities In the context of global change understanding the mechanisms that shape microbial communities is pivotal to predict microbial responses to novel selective forces and their implications at the local as well as global scale One of the main features of microbial communities is their ability to react to changes in the environment Thus many studies have reported changes in the performance and composition of communities along environmental gradients However the mechanisms underlying these responses remain unclear It is assumed that the response of microbes to changes in the environment is mediated by a complex combination of shifts in the physiological properties single cell activities or composition of communities it may occur by means of physiological adjustments of the taxa present in a community or selecting towards more tolerant better adapted phylotypes Knowing whether certain factors trigger one many or all mechanisms would greatly increase confidence in predictions of future microbial composition and processes This Research Topic brings together studies that applied the latest molecular techniques for studying microbial composition and functioning and integrated ecological biogeochemical and or modeling approaches to provide a comprehensive and mechanistic perspective of the responses of micro organisms to environmental changes This Research Topic presents new findings on environmental parameters influencing microbial communities the type and magnitude of response and differences in the response among microbial groups and which collectively deepen our current understanding and knowledge of the underlying mechanisms of microbial structural and functional responses to environmental changes and gradients in both aquatic and terrestrial ecosystems The body of work has furthermore identified many challenges and questions that yet remain to be addressed and new perspectives to follow up on Redox

Homeostasis Managers in Plants under Environmental Stresses Nafees A. Khan, Naser A. Anjum, Adriano Sofo, Rene Kizek, Margarete Baier, 2016-06-30

The production of cellular oxidants such as reactive oxygen species ROS is an inevitable consequence of redox cascades of aerobic metabolism in plants This milieu is further aggravated by a myriad of adverse environmental conditions that plants owing to their sessile life style have to cope with during their life cycle Adverse conditions prevent plants reaching their full genetic potential in terms of growth and productivity mainly as a result of accelerated ROS generation accrued redox imbalances and halted cellular metabolism In order to sustain ROS accrued consequences plants tend to manage a fine homeostasis between the generation and antioxidants mediated metabolisms of

ROS and its reaction products Well known for their involvement in the regulation of several non stress related processes redox related components such as proteinaceous thiol members such as thioredoxin glutaredoxin and peroxiredoxin proteins and key soluble redox compounds namely ascorbate AsA and glutathione GSH are also listed as efficient managers of cellular redox homeostasis in plants The management of the cellular redox homeostasis is also contributed by electron carriers and energy metabolism mediators such as non phosphorylated NAD and the phosphorylated NADP coenzyme forms and their redox couples DHA AsA GSSG GSH NAD NADH and NADP NADPH Moreover intracellular concentrations of these cellular redox homeostasis managers in plant cells fluctuate with the external environments and mediate dynamic signaling in plant stress responses This research topic aims to exemplify new information on how redox homeostasis managers are modulated by environmental cues and what potential strategies are useful for improving cellular concentrations of major redox homeostasis managers Additionally it also aims to provide readers detailed updates on specific topics and to highlight so far unexplored aspects in the current context

Religious Responses to Earthquake and Volcanic Eruption Disasters

David Chester, Angus Duncan, John Duncan, 2024-07-26 This book argues that although secular and religious perspectives on disasters have often conflicted today there are grounds for believing that the world's major faiths have much to contribute to the processes of post disaster recovery and future disaster risk reduction DRR It seeks to demonstrate how contemporary dialogues between theologians disaster scholars and policymakers are defining new ways of working together These explore how the resources of religious communities e.g buildings human resources and finance may be used to foster successful policies of DRR particularly in the aftermath of earthquakes and volcanic eruptions Musing on the relationships between religion and disasters has occurred for millennia and has affected many societies worldwide In societies where the world's major religions Buddhism Christianity Hinduism Islam Judaism and Shinto have been and remain dominant attempting to find supernatural explanations for disasters has occurred throughout history and there have been many theologies seeking to explain why people suffer losses It is argued that developments both within these traditions of faith and in how disasters are understood by the hazard research community of researchers and planners have allowed a new modus vivendi to emerge which emphasises both a recognition of religious worldviews by academic writers and disaster planners on the one hand and a desire by people of faith and their leaders to be more fully committed to the goals of DRR The book will appeal to those who are interested in the interface between disasters and theology across the principal religions of the world This includes researchers and students in geology geography theology and religious studies It will also be useful for specialist academic audience and the educated general reader

Journal of Environmental Science and Management, 2013 Youth Activism in Environmental Politics, 2nd Edition Matt Henn, Sarah Pickard, 2023-02-02 Recently important new research has emerged to explain the large intergenerational cleavages in values and political preferences in many contemporary societies In most established democracies and many newer democracies young people are more likely to possess progressive values and are much more cosmopolitan in their outlook socially liberal accepting of cultural diversity and outward looking than older generations They tend to reject mainstream electoral politics and authoritarian nationalist forms of populism in favour of alternative progressive political parties and movements Indeed there is burgeoning evidence of a global tendency towards young people s support for and participation in new styles of non institutionalised political action that seem to better fit their life styles and to permit the actualisation of their political aspirations Although there is a considerable body of existing literature that examines the rise of such values and political participation preferences there is little work that focuses on the relationship with the prioritisation of environmental issues and environmental activism as evidenced in the September 2019 global climate strikes The goal of the current Research Topic is to explore the contemporary realities and patterns of youth participation in environmental politics in different societies As such we welcome manuscripts of original research and conceptualization that address the different practices of youth as they seek to effect environmental change and also their motivations for doing so Contributions are welcome from scholars youth practitioners and activists operating in a range of different settings and using diverse disciplinary and multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives

Geoengineering our Climate? Jason J. Blackstock, Sean Low, 2018-09-04 If the detrimental impacts of human induced climate change continue to mount technologies for geoengineering our climate i e deliberate modifying of the Earth s climate system at a large scale are likely to receive ever greater attention from countries and societies worldwide Geoengineering technologies could have profound ramifications for our societies and yet agreeing on an international governance framework in which even serious research into these planetary altering technologies can take place presents an immense international political challenge In this important book a diverse collection of internationally respected scientists philosophers legal scholars policymakers and civil society representatives examine and reflect upon the global geoengineering debate they have helped shape Opening with essays examining the historic origins of contemporary geoengineering ideas the book goes on to explore varying perspectives from across the first decade of this global discourse since 2006 These essays methodically cover the practical and ethical dilemmas geoengineering poses the evolving geoengineering research agenda the challenges geoengineering technologies present to current international legal and political frameworks and differing perceptions of geoengineering from around the world The book concludes with a series of forward looking essays some drawing lessons from precedents for governing other global issues others proposing how geoengineering technologies might be governed if as they begin to emerge from the lab into the real world This book is an indispensable resource for scientists activists policymakers and political figures aiming to engage in the emerging debate about geoengineering our climate

Financing Investment in Disaster Risk Reduction and Climate Change Adaptation Mikio Ishiwatari, Daisuke Sasaki, 2022-09-01 As the population is growing and urbanization is progressing higher numbers of people are exposed to disaster risks especially in the developing countries Climate change is further worsening the impacts of existing risks and introducing new ones It is imperative that countries need to invest more in disaster risk reduction DRR as well as climate change adaptation CCA not only to minimize their impacts but also to build resilience To date various international arenas have recommended increasing investment in DRR The Sendai Framework for DRR adopted by the UN member states in 2015 during the Third UN World Conference on DRR emphasizes investment as a priority for decreasing disaster risks and losses The Yangon Declaration set the goal of doubling investment to address water related disasters However most countries are not able to proactively invest enough in DRR Understanding the current scale and estimate of investment and its effects is crucial for promoting DRR investment but such information and estimates are rarely available This book examines the current investment trends and issues in DRR and CCA Based on specific case studies field data and evidence the book identifies challenges in increasing investment and recommends various investment policies and innovative approaches to sustainable progress towards a resilient future Chapter 12 is available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License via link.springer.com
