

1. INTRODUCTION

The Occupational Safety and Health Act, found in the United States Code at title 29, chapter 15, is the primary federal law governing occupational health and safety in the private sector and federal government in the United States. Enacted by Congress in 1970, its main goal is to ensure that employers provide employees with an environment free from recognized hazards, such as exposure to toxic chemicals, excessive noise levels, mechanical dangers, heat or cold stress, or unsanitary conditions. The Act created the Occupational Safety & Health Administration (OSHA) under the Department of Labor to establish and enforce workplace health and safety standards. The standards promulgated by OSHA that are applicable to general industry are found in title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR), Part 1910. Pursuant to Florida Executive Order 2000-292, public-sector employers, such as Palm Beach State College, are directed to comply voluntarily with OSHA's CFR 1910 standards as the basis for their safety practices.

In recognition of its responsibilities, Palm Beach State College has adopted a Safety, Health and Environmental Policy that commits it to do the following:

- A. Comply with all applicable safety, health and environmental laws and regulations and establish programs and procedures to assure compliance.
- B. Provide College personnel with appropriate safety and emergency equipment and ensure that they are properly trained in the procedures that will protect themselves and the environment.
- C. Take appropriate action to correct hazards or conditions that pose a risk to safety, health or the environment.
- D. Consider safety and environmental factors in all operating decisions.

The policy makes all College employees and students responsible for compliance with it. A copy of this policy is found at Appendix A.
