

Enhanced Position Location Reporting System: Legacy System Provides New Technology for Warfighters

Deborah Tharp and Laird Wallace

INTRODUCTION

The Position Location Reporting System (PLRS) and its successor, the Enhanced Position Location Reporting System (EPLRS), were initiated during the later stages of the Vietnam conflict. PLRS was developed by the Marine Corps as a system to prevent troop casualties due to "friendly fire" or "fratricide." The Army, building on the PLRS technology, initiated EPLRS to provide more advanced communications capabilities. The Navy adopted PLRS and later EPLRS to provide communications and position location information in conjunction with the AN/KSQ-1 Amphibious Assault Direction System (AADS) installed on many amphibious ships.

EPLRS serves all three services as a position location, identification, communications, and (sometimes) navigation system that incorporates the newest and most sophisticated technology. Two versions of EPLRS are currently in service. They each consist of two primary components, a network control element and a network of Radio Sets (RSs), as shown in Figure 1. The older version of EPLRS includes a Network Control Station (NCS), which has been replaced in the latest generation of EPLRS by an EPLRS Network Manager (ENM).

Both versions of EPLRS have similar capabilities but have some significant differences. The two systems are not compatible, primarily because of changes made in the RS firmware. Additionally, some of the functions performed by the NCS have been allocated to the newer version of the radio (e.g., position calculation and distribution). Other NCS functions (i.e., generation of Nav aids and Situation Display) are expected to be accomplished by the services' host computer systems, such as the Army's Force Battle Command Brigade and Below (FBCB2) system and the Marine Corps Command and Control Personal Computer (C2PC) system. Both versions of EPLRS provide important capabilities for the warrior. However, unless otherwise indicated, the information presented in this paper applies mainly to the ENM version of EPLRS.

The latest generation of EPLRS features a network of highly sophisticated RSs that provide high-data-rate (HDR) communications and real-time routing capability. Each RS now incorporates an embedded router that enables contention-free routing of data between communications services and makes one RS look like many radios (up to 32) to host equipment. The ENM provides distributed network management to the RSs that includes network planning, communication circuit information, system

ABSTRACT

The Enhanced Position Location Reporting System (EPLRS) originated more than 30 years ago during the Vietnam conflict as a system to prevent troop casualties due to "friendly fire," or "fratricide." The initial system, the Position Location Reporting System (PLRS), focused primarily on providing Position Location Information (PLI), identification, and navigation aides to the warfighters. This information was collected and (after processing) distributed by a simple but effective network of Radio Sets (RSs). The latest generation of Enhanced PLRS (EPLRS) retains the PLI, identification, and navigation capabilities of PLRS but incorporates the newest and most sophisticated technology into the communications network. The RSs provide high-data-rate (HDR) communications and real-time routing capability. Each RS incorporates an embedded router that enables contention-free routing of data between communications services and makes one RS look like many radios (up to 32) to host equipment. A newly developed computer program, the EPLRS Network Manager (ENM), which resides in a laptop computer, manages the RS network. The ENM provides distributed network management to the RSs that includes network planning, communication circuit information, system monitoring, fault detection and resolution, continuity of operations, and key management.
