These solutions were written by Johann Blanco and typed up by Georgia Tsambos. Please be ethical with this resource. It is for the use of MATHSOC members, so do not repost it on other forums or groups without asking for permission. If you appreciate this resource, please consider supporting us by coming to our events and buying our T-shirts! Also, happy studying :)

Notes from Johann: Please note that I cannot guarantee that my working is correct, and/or that my working would obtain full marks. For want of brevity, I have summarised some sections of the solutions (especially when I used L'Hopital's rule) or skipped explanation altogether.

My solutions are not the be all and end all. They are summaries of what each sort of solution should have. There are sometimes multiple methods of solving the same question - and I offer one. Remember in the real class test, you will be expected to explain your steps and working out (to a degree).

Notes from Georgia: This document was written using a free mathematical typesetting program called \LaTeX (pronounced lay-tek). If you plan to take maths courses in higher years, you will almost certainly need to use it later on.

There are many useful web resources that can teach you how to use \LaTeX . However, I learnt most of my basic skills by downloading the code for existing documents and fiddling around with it. If you would like to try this, drop me an email at g.tsambos@student.unsw.edu.au and I will send you the code for this file.
