FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT

“The fundamental purpose of assessment in education is to establish and understand the points that students (either as individuals or groups) have reached in their learning at the time of assessment”¹
Masters, (2015)¹

OVERVIEW

This Professional Practice Note provides guidance for teachers and school leaders on formative assessment: what it is and how to build it into regular classroom practice.

Used alongside a set of clearly defined and challenging learning intentions, formative assessment is continuous feedback that allows a teacher to evaluate impact and a student to move their learning forward².

If we understand assessment as the process of establishing where students are at then, in fact, all assessment is formative. Incorporated into a teaching and learning cycle, formative assessment is at the heart of improving student learning outcomes.

Formative assessment provides the answers to the questions: Is learning on track? What needs to change? Where does learning go next? It can be immediate (a specific question, thumbs up-thumbs down) or planned (a quiz, a student moderation). It is timely (built into every lesson of every unit), and iterative (closes the circle of planning).

This Professional Practice Note, together with Practice Principles 1: High Expectations, 4: Curriculum Planning, and 5: Rigorous Assessment Practices, provide a reference point for future planning and improvement and can support teachers and school teams to use effective formative assessment as a focus for their work with professional learning communities and in each classroom.

UNDERSTANDING FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT

Formative assessment provides the feedback to enable teacher and student to answer three key questions:

- What is to be learned?
- How is learning progressing?
- What will be learned next?³

THE PURPOSE OF ASSESSMENT

Rather than categorising assessment as ‘for learning’, ‘in learning’, or ‘of learning’, we need to focus on what assessment tells us about the progress that students (individually or in groups) have achieved in their learning at the time of assessment.

We can start to see all assessment in schools as formative if we focus on the question ‘what is the purpose of the assessment?’⁴ A form of assessment traditionally understood as ‘summative’, such as a test, can be formative if the teacher uses what they learn from the students’ test results to modify a lesson plan to revisit a topic previously covered⁵ because they identify gaps in their students’ understanding.

Similarly, a ‘diagnostic’ assessment focusing on alphabet recognition becomes formative when the teacher uses the data gathered to build in explicit teaching⁶ on phonemic awareness for their Foundation class.

The information that formative assessment yields can be used in many different ways: to define learning intentions, to design a unit of work based on the Victorian Curriculum, to identify gaps or misconceptions in individual understanding, to identify a student’s zone of proximal development, or to
