

songs. I'm not trying to sing, but I write them, and I shoot a lot of [the video]. I don't think [younger artists] are aware of those things, which I think would be inspiring for them.

TW: When you were making the video, did you think, "I want this to be as good as the one for 'Thriller'?"

MJ: No, because I knew I didn't have the time to execute that. There are ideas that are coming up that will be better.

TW: Do you let your kids watch MTV?

MJ: At a certain age I will, not now. They are going to have to be 11 or 14.

TW: Do you watch TV?

MJ: I love PBS, the Discovery Channel, the Simpsons. I love Sesame Street. I would watch it for hours. But my favorite show is Melrose in the Middle. It reminds me so much of my brothers and me! When we were kids.

TW: Which character do you relate to?

MJ: Melrose. Mainly because he likes to sit in his room, and he doesn't—the K.I. one. Thanks, he can't adjust to other people's concepts. And I feel like that a lot of times. Once I'm strange, I feel awkward, like that is not where I'm supposed to be.

TW: Which one of your kids is most like you?

MJ: Both, but in different ways. Prince likes to dance, to the point where you want to pull his hair. I always used to tease my sisters all the time.

TW: And Patti?

MJ: She's the tough one.

TW: How is their mother, Debbie Rowe? [A former nurse, she was married to Jackson from 1994 to '99. Jackson was married to his first wife, Lisa Marie Presley, from 1984 to '94.]

MJ: I heard she is doing good, she's been Pat's strong like Debbie.

TW: Regarding your finances, there are rumors that you are bankrupt and that that's why you charged high prices for the concert tickets.

MJ: That's tabloid garbage. They make things up. They're looking for something to write about.

TW: With the state of the world right now, you must be concerned for the kids. You were in New York when the terrorist attacks took place.

MJ: Yeah, I got a call from someone that said America's being attacked. I said, "What are you talking about?" They said, "There's an attack." And I couldn't believe what I saw. And I screamed down the hallway, "Everybody, quick, get up, we're got to go." And everybody got dressed, and we got to the car and drove faster out [than the city].

TW: The attacks prompted you to write and produce an all-star recording of the song "What More Can I Give" to benefit the victims. [Mike McKelvie, Colbie Davis, Jays H. Allen, Marvinet Curry, Ricky Martin, Gloria Estefan and others among the artists scheduled to perform.]

MJ: I was sick over the sensitivity of the attacks. I don't know if [Jackson's song] played it too many times, but we went from door to door to urge to forgiveness. And I think... [Continued on page 51]

THE MAN IN THE MIRROR

the world had a lot to do with that.

TW: We know you are planning to talk to President Bush about the war and its prospects.

MJ: I talked to [Bush] once. We have a phone call coming up very soon with the president. They told us that they're very proud of what I'm doing and that he would be an honor to have me.

TW: Your intention seems to be about helping people.

MJ: I've always done that, you know. I've been here, because of this [terrorist] attack, everybody is trying to improve. And people about this kind of stuff. I've done it all my career. "Bad the World," "We Are the World," "Win the World," "Man in the Mirror," about the planet, earth, songs. And nobody was doing it but me because that's where my heart is. I care. My biggest dream is to have a children's day, where children can bond with their parents.

TW: Is your relationship with you everywhere?

MJ: Everywhere [go].

TW: What will happen when they start school and can't stand to walk?

MJ: I'm going to build a computer school in the grounds of Neverland, Jackson's estate. With other children.

TW: Is there any place where you're?

MJ: Yeah, there was [my parents' estate]. It's Prince Michael Jackson. He's Prince Katherine Michael Jackson. It would be too difficult.

TW: Why do you think you have such an affinity for children?

MJ: I'll tell you exactly where it came from. Because I never had a childhood. When they're in pain, I feel their pain. And when they're in danger, I feel their danger. I have such emotions about the things and the state of our children today. If there was one day where kids could get with parents and bond, this would make such a difference. I'll tell that one day with my father. It would have made a difference in our relationship today—just the one day.

TW: What is your relationship with your father?

MJ: It's much better now. He's a much more person now. He's softened out a bit since he's had grandchildren, you know. He has three-year-old grandkids now.

TW: What did your dad think of the concert special? Was he there?

MJ: He was at the show. But my father, if he feels you're doing a good show, he'll just go, "Good show." He won't say, "Oh, you did wonderful." I don't think he knows how to show affection. [Michael looks at Prince, who is smiling around the room with a camera but studies his own, chastising and judging certain responses on the show.]

MJ: [Smiling] Prince, didn't I impress you? [The guard, remember?]

TW: What else do you want to do with your career?

MJ: I have reviews. I'm going to direct more and act more. I feel the most powerful artistic expression in the world is film. I want to do a film with Lisa Bonet. We are planning a movie together. It's about two struggling relationships trying to make it; they get tossed away everywhere they go. With some of the best dancing ever. I'm not joking. Because I see it, I feel it here. [Prince is in heartbreak mode, Prince looks across the room and sits at his father's feet. Prince stands onto Jackson's lap and sits there smiling up, while he studies his face.]

TW: Michael Jackson as a father. It is an image we never see. Are you a good father?

MJ: I try my hardest. I try to bring them a lot of love, there's just I don't get the a chance, with the whole press—the news, the press. And I give them candy and movies.

PRINCE: [Smiling] And we create.

MJ: And we create. ■
