Marble Champ

By Gary Soto
1990

Gary Soto, an American poet, novelist, and memoirist, often writes about growing up and living in Mexican American communities. In this short story, a determined young girl sets out to overcome her challenges and prove herself. As you read, take notes on how Lupe reacts and responds to the challenges she faces.

- [1] Lupe Medrano, a shy girl who spoke in whispers, was the school's spelling bee champion, winner of the reading contest at the public library three summers in a row, blue ribbon awardee in the science fair, the top student at her piano recital, and the playground grand champion in chess. She was a straight-A student and — not counting kindergarten, when she had been stung by a wasp — never missed one day of elementary school. She had received a small trophy for this honor and had been congratulated by the mayor.

The truth was that Lupe was no good in sports. She could not catch a pop-up or figure out in which direction to kick the soccer ball. One time she kicked the ball at her own goal and scored a point for the other team. She was no good at baseball or basketball either, and even had a hard time making a hula hoop stay on her hips.

It wasn't until last year, when she was eleven years old, that she learned how to ride a bike. And even then she had to use training wheels. She could walk in the swimming pool but couldn't swim, and chanced roller skating only when her father held her hand.

- [5] "I'll never be good at sports," she fumed one rainy day as she lay on her bed gazing at the shelf her father had made to hold her awards. "I wish I could win something, anything, even marbles."

At the word "marbles," she sat up. "That's it. Maybe I could be good at playing marbles." She hopped out of bed and rummaged¹ through the closet until she found a can full of her
