Le Temple De Ain Dara:

Temples and Sanctuaries from the Early Iron Age Levant William E. Mierse, 2012-10-15 The vision for this impressive work on temple architecture in the Levant grew out of the author's work on Roman temple designs on the Iberian Peninsula and continual references to Semitic influences on the designs of sanctuaries both on the Peninsula and in North Africa It was assumed that Phoenician colonization had brought with it the full flowering of Levantine architectural forms As Mierse began to search for relevant material on the ancient Levant however he discovered that no overall synthesis had ever been written and it was virtually impossible to recognize and isolate Semitic elements in architectural forms This book addresses this need The analysis presented here is comparative and follows the methodology most commonly employed by architectural historians throughout the twentieth century It is a formalist approach and permits the isolation of lines of continuity and the detection of discontinuity While Mierse relies heavily on this traditional method he also introduces some approaches from the postprocessual school of archaeology in its attempts to discern an appropriate way for cult to be investigated by archaeology The sanctuaries that this book presents were erected between the end of the Late Bronze Age conventionally assigned the date of 1200 B C E and the annexation of the Levantine region into the Assyrian Empire when Mesopotamia again became highly influential in the region The topic concerns temples that were produced during the period when the Levant was its own entity and politically independent of Egypt Mesopotamia or Anatolia During this period the designs chosen for inclusion in this book must reflect local choices rather than resulting from imposed outside concepts The architecture that emerged in the wake of the downfall of the Late Bronze Age and the subsequent reemergence of social cohesiveness manifested significant changes in form and function The five centuries under review reveal exciting developments in sacred architecture and show that although the architects of the first millennium B C E maintained important lines of continuity with the developments of the previous two millennia they were also capable of creating novel forms to meet new needs Included in this fascinating volume are 90 pages of photos drawings floor plans and maps

Le Temple de Ain Dara Ali Abou-Assaf, 1999 The Iron Age Settlement at 'Ain Dara, Syria Elizabeth Caecilia Stone, Paul E. Zimansky, 1999 The great temple of Ain Dara overlooking the Afrin Valley from the summit of a steep sided tell is one of the most impressive monuments of the north Syrian Iron Age In a program of excavation extending over more than three decades expeditions sponsored by the Syrian Department of Antiquities and Museums have completely exposed the temple s ground plan and recovered a major corpus of associated sculptures This rich archaeological harvest however poses important questions to which excavation in the temple itself has suggested only incomplete answers or none at all The research presented in this survey and excavation report is the product of a project undertaken in the early 1980s to provide a context for the temple by investigating the settlement that surrounded it offering a contribution to our understanding of an obscure phase in the archaeology of northern Syria and southern Anatolia
