Section 1.3	Westward Expansion
Section 1.4	The Civil War
Section 1.5	Reconstruction and the Gilded Age

Section 1.1

Early Colonial Settlements

1.1.1

The early colonial period of the United States was marked by the establishment of permanent settlements along the Atlantic coast. The first English colony, Jamestown, was founded in 1607 in Virginia. It was a difficult settlement, but it laid the foundation for the future of the United States. Other colonies followed, including Plymouth in Massachusetts in 1620 and the Roanoke colony in North Carolina in 1652. The colonies were initially dependent on England for supplies and protection, but they gradually developed their own identities and economies.

Section 1.2

The American Revolution

1.2.1

The American Revolution was a war for independence that took place between 1775 and 1783. It was fought between the thirteen original colonies and the Kingdom of Great Britain. The revolution was the result of a long period of tension and conflict between the colonies and the British government. The colonies demanded more rights and self-governance, while the British government insisted on maintaining its authority. The war ended with the signing of the Treaty of Paris in 1783, which recognized the independence of the United States.

Section 1.3

Westward Expansion

1.3.1

Westward expansion was a major theme in the history of the United States. It was the process of moving the population and the frontiers of the country westward. This was driven by the desire for land, resources, and new markets. The Louisiana Purchase of 1803 and the Texas Annexation of 1845 were key events in the process. The expansion was often accompanied by conflict with Native American tribes and the Mexican government. The Gold Rush of 1849 further fueled the westward movement.

Section 1.4

The Civil War

1.4.1

The Civil War was a major conflict in the history of the United States. It was fought between the Union (the North) and the Confederacy (the South) from 1861 to 1865. The war was primarily over the issue of slavery. The South wanted to maintain slavery, while the North wanted to abolish it. The war resulted in the abolition of slavery and the preservation of the Union. It was a turning point in the history of the United States, leading to the Reconstruction era and the eventual passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.
