

Because his game has improved, he has greater self-esteem and a positive self-concept. During this developmental stage, he has also noticed that he is better at regulating stress and anger during football games or at school by taking deep breaths. He takes time to be alone and calm down. (C. Williams, personal communication, August 7, 2019). This past year he has begun spending more time with friends; this past Halloween was the first time he went trick-or-treating with his friends instead of his parents. He also suggested his parents to spend more time with friends during the summer. Although he is spending more time with friends, he is not friends with the same kids as when he was younger. The best friend used to be a boy across the street, but now that boy is in middle school, and they no longer share the same interests like sports, video games, or the same friends. (C. Williams, personal communication, August 7, 2019). Levi ultimately believes he is who he is at this point in life because his mom and dad made him, and he does not believe his environment has had any influence. He believes the most significant challenge during this developmental stage is making up early for school. His advice to anyone entering into late childhood is to go to bed early. (C. Williams, personal communication, August 7, 2019).

Michelle (adolescent)

She is a 17-year-old female identified as being late adolescent. (C. Clark, personal communication, August 7, 2019). She has felt this way since she turned 16 years old because she feels as though the countdown to the end of her life has already begun, and therefore time is running out. (C. Clark, personal communication, August 7, 2019). Her paternal grandmother died in her early 70's, and her maternal grandmother died in her 60's, which contributes to why she feels this way. She said she grows more to who she is like a blink of an eye as she has gotten older. In comparing her life span to hers, she feels she was the best, physically, in her 70's. (C. Clark, personal communication, August 7, 2019). She usually believes her physical appearance

Critical Theories of Psychological Development John M. Broughton, 1987-03-31 Something instructive occurred in the process of entitling the present collection Both editor and publisher sought a simple and succinct rubric for the various pieces of work But they rapidly and reluctantly reached the consensus that by either intellectual or marketing criteria the insertion of the adjective psychological to qualify the noun development was a communicative necessity Much to the chagrin of the developmental psychologist the term development still connotes to the world at large as well as the general community of publishers librarians and computer archivists the modernization of nation states Inside and outside the university I find that when asked What are you interested in I am not at liberty to reply The concept of development without being absorbed immediately into a discussion of Third World studies The approach of the present volume should be taken as an exhortation to psychologists to take the genealogy of development seriously The history of the discipline is not so different from the history of the word and as we shall discover the concern with developmental progress cannot easily be separated from the urge for dominion This volume presents a selection from the recent critical scholarship on psychological development The emphasis is on rethinking the field of developmental psychology at the level of theory
