Sih, 2012-12-06 The assessment of crack initiation and or propagation has been the subject of many past discussions on fracture mechanics Depending on how the chosen failure criterion is combined with the solution of a particular theory of continuum mechanics the outcome could vary over a wide range Mod elling of the material damage process could be elusive if the scale level of observation is left undefined The specification of physical dimension alone is not sufficient because time and temperature also play an intimate role It is only when the latter two variables are fixed that failure predictions can be simplified The sudden fracture of material with a pre existing crack is a case in point Barring changes in the local temperature the energy released to create a unit surface area of an existing crack can be obtained by considering the change in elastic energy of the system before and after crack extension Such a quantity has been referred to as the critical energy release rate G_e or stress intensity factor K_{Ie} Other parameters such as the crack opening displacement COD path independent J integral etc have been proposed their relation to the fracture process is also based on the energy release concept These one parameter approaches however are unable simultaneously to account for the failure process of crack initiation propagation and onset of rapid fracture A review on the use of G K_I COD J etc has been made by Sih 1 2 Te Math Advantage 98 Gr 6 Vol 1 Harcourt Brace Publishing,1997-10-10
