

HOW TEACHERS USING MODELING INSTRUCTION OBTAINED TECHNOLOGY - and how you can, too!

(Written in 1997; updated in 2008. By Jane Jackson)

The Modeling Instruction Program teaches the modeling method to high school physics teachers nationwide. Fifty teachers were involved in the first phase of our Leadership Modeling Workshops for a total of 10 weeks in summers 1995 to 1997. About 150 more were involved in the second and third phase from 1997 to 1999. Although the modeling method can be implemented without any technology, the use of technology makes its implementation far more efficient. This article discusses the experiences that the first 50 teachers had in obtaining technology.

To fully implement the modeling method of physics instruction, one computer workstation is recommended for every three students. A workstation includes several MBL probes and a lab interface. Old or new computers can be used to implement the basic modeling method. Late-model computers are best, or recent products such as Vernier Software & Technology's LabQuest or Pasco Scientific Company's Xplorer GLX, which don't require computers.

Our goal is to get computers (or LabQuest or Xplorer GLX) into the physics classroom to be used as scientific tools with appropriate teaching methods. Scientific simulation software and Internet simulations require computers and can improve the ability of physics students to learn by modeling physical phenomena scientifically.

About half of the 50 teachers had no trouble getting all the technology they needed through their school district. The teacher's involvement in this project, in many cases, was the key to their obtaining the technology. Their administration and school board were pleased to provide them with new computers and equipment because of research showing the effectiveness of the modeling method.

The other half of the teachers had to look outside their school districts. Some teach in disadvantaged districts; others are in schools where student-used technology in science is not valued. Searching for classroom technology was a new experience for most teachers. Most public school teachers must make their own contacts and write their own grants. A few of our teachers work in private schools that have development directors who help in writing grant proposals. Even so, some of these grant writers write only for the school, and not for the individual teachers' classroom needs.

How teachers obtained technology by nontraditional means:

Here are examples of efforts by the teachers to obtain technology outside usual channels in the school district.

- The quickest success was by a beginning midwestern public school teacher in an affluent district. She wrote a two-page proposal to a local educational foundation and was awarded $10,000. She gave an oral presentation to the parent-teacher organization and they awarded her $2500.
- A teacher at a private school made a phone call to a nearby government laboratory and explained his involvement in our reform project. He was given $500 on the spot. He was told that if he had asked earlier in the year he would have been given much more. He was promised funding for the next year.

Mathematical Modeling Instruction Hubert Boven, 2021-04 This is a good book to read for technicians after you have been in the field for a while to transition from being equipment oriented to system oriented. The author's framework and modeling approach are practical and are a good first step into the rough waters of trying to model problems in the industry. This guidebook goes right to the heart of engineering teaching you how to understand and use the three basic types of engineering building blocks. Recognize the analogies that can be drawn between the fundamental elements of electrical mechanical fluid and thermal systems Develop math models for first and higher order systems using four fundamental methods Analyze the models you develop Perform frequency analysis and plot frequency responses

Modeling Instruction in Science Education Aimee Kalisz,2018 This study will look at modeling instruction and how it affects students understanding in a science classroom Three sets of middle school students and their pre post test data were analyzed for this study The three sets of students compared are as follows the control group which consists of students taught in a traditional science classroom from the 2014 2015 school year The second set of students is a group from the 2015 2016 school year who were the first set of students taught using the modeling method The last group of students used for this study is from the 2016 2017 school year who were taught using the modeling instruction after the teachers initial year of implementing modeling Students in all groups showed growth in understanding but after comparing data between the pre post tests students that had modeling instruction showed a greater understanding of the material and scientific concepts The data also shows that students have continued to grow as the teacher has continued learning how to implement the modeling process in the classroom Although there is evidence found within this study continued research should be done Data should continue to be collected each year from students as the teacher progresses in developing an understanding for this teaching style If growth in understanding continues then it would be greater evidence that the modeling method is beneficial as compared to a traditional style classroom
