Hirvonen, Kalle, Hoddinott, John F., 2018-10-23 Economists typically default to the assumption that cash is always preferable to an in kind transfer We extend the classic Southworth 1945 framework to predict under what conditions this assumption holds We take the model to longitudinal household data from Ethiopia where a large scale social safety net intervention the Productive Safety Net Programme PSNP operates Even though most PSNP payments are paid in cash and even though the temporal transaction costs associated with food payments are higher than payments received as cash the overwhelming majority of the beneficiary households prefer their payments only or partly in food However these preferences are neither homogeneous nor stable Higher food prices induce shifts in preferences towards in kind transfers but more food secure households and those closer to food markets and to financial services prefer cash There is suggestive evidence that preferences for food are also driven by self control concerns Oversight of the U.S. Role in the International Maritime resilience: The case of the productive safety net program in Ethiopia Abay, Kibrom A., Abay, Mehari Hiluf, Berhane, Guush, Chamberlin, Jordan, 2021-12-31 Improving household resilience is becoming one of the key focus and target of social protection programs in Africa However there is surprisingly little direct evidence of the impacts of social protection programs on household resilience measures We use five rounds of panel data to examine rural households resilience outcomes associated with participation in Ethiopia's Productive Safety Nets Program PSNP Following Ciss and Barrett 2018 we employ a probabilistic moment based approach for measuring resilience and evaluate the role of PSNP transfers and duration of participation on households resilience We document four important findings First although PSNP transfers are positively associated with resilience PSNP transfers below the median are less likely to generate meaningful improvements in resilience Second continuous participation in the PSNP participation is associated with higher resilience Third combining safety nets with income generating or asset building initiatives may be particularly efficacious at building poor households resilience Fourth our evaluation of both short term welfare outcomes and longer term resilience suggests that these outcomes are likely to be driven by different factors suggesting that optimizing intervention designs for improving short term welfare impacts may not necessarily improve households resilience and vice versa Together our findings imply that effectively boosting household resilience may require significant transfers over multiple years National safety nets programs

The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Charles Tavis is a quiet and reserved young man who is deeply in love with Henry. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him. Morrow is a complex and mysterious figure, and he seems to be manipulating the students for his own purposes. As the students become more involved with Morrow, they begin to commit increasingly dangerous acts. The Secret History is a masterful and thrilling novel that will keep you guessing until the very end. The novel is a cautionary tale about the dangers of obsession and the power of evil.
