

PEER REVIEW and SELF-EVALUATION

Unpacked, this question suggests that your choice of peer review strategies will be more appropriate, and your interpretation of the information that comes to hand will be better if you know

... who stands behind the statements you're paying attention to - e.g. what their linguistic, cultural and educational backgrounds are; whether their expectations or experience of university teaching and learning are like or unlike yours; how aware or well-informed they are about their own practices and their own progress as teachers etc.,

... to whom they think they are giving their information - e.g. to you direct; to somebody else through you; to you as a less experienced colleague; to you as an equal; to you as a better informed or better placed colleague; or not to you at all, but to some other specific or generalised audience; whether they believe there is a relationship of trust, or a mutually beneficial arrangement of some kind, or no relationship at all between them and you or their other intended audience

... how they communicate - i.e. what form(s), manner(s) or style(s) of delivery they've used on this occasion, compared with those they are given to using elsewhere; how formal or informal, studied or spontaneous, distilled and structured or elaborative and exploratory their communications are

... when the communication was composed, transmitted and received; what temporal considerations (amount of time taken, allowed or required; time of day; time of year etc.) influenced the composition, transmission and reception; how much time elapsed between the request for information and the response; how much time the communicator believes will elapse before you get back to them

... where the communication was composed, transmitted and received; what considerations of space or place (confined, comfortable, appropriate, inappropriate, familiar, not familiar) influenced the composition, transmission and reception
