Crypto Wars Craig Jarvis,2020-12-30 The crypto wars have raged for half a century In the 1970s digital privacy activists prophesied the emergence of an Orwellian State made possible by computer mediated mass surveillance The antidote digital encryption The U S government warned encryption would not only prevent surveillance of law abiding citizens but of criminals terrorists and foreign spies ushering in a rival dystopian future Both parties fought to defend the citizenry from what they believed the most perilous threats The government tried to control encryption to preserve its surveillance capabilities privacy activists armed citizens with cryptographic tools and challenged encryption regulations in the courts No clear victor has emerged from the crypto wars Governments have failed to forge a framework to govern the at times conflicting civil liberties of privacy and security in the digital age an age when such liberties have an outsized influence on the citizen State power balance Solving this problem is more urgent than ever Digital privacy will be one of the most important factors in how we architect twenty first century societies its management is paramount to our stewardship of democracy for future generations We must elevate the quality of debate on cryptography on how we govern security and privacy in our technology infused world Failure to end the crypto wars will result in societies sleepwalking into a future where the citizen State power balance is determined by a twentieth century status quo unfit for this century endangering both our privacy and security This book provides a history of the crypto wars with the hope its chronicling sets a foundation for peace

21st Century Prometheus Maurizio Martellini,Ralf Trapp,2020-03-11 This book describes the evolving CBRN risk landscape and highlights advances in the core CBRN technologies including when combined with improvised explosive devices CBRNe threats It analyses how associated technologies create new safety and security risks challenging certain assumptions that underlie current control regimes The book also shows how technologies can be enablers for more effective strategies to mitigate these risks 21st century safety and security risks emanating from chemical biological radiological and nuclear materials whether resulting from natural events accidents or malevolent use are increasingly shaped by technologies that enable their development production or use in ways that differ from the past Artificial intelligence the use of cyberspace the revolution in the life sciences new manufacturing methods new platforms and equipment for agent delivery hypersonic weapons systems information tools utilised in hybrid warfare these and other technologies are reshaping the global security environment and CBRN landscape They are leading to a growing potential for highly targeted violence and they can lead to greater instability and vulnerability worldwide At the same time technology offers solutions to manage CBRN risks Examples are faster detection more accurate characterisation of the nature and origin of CBRN agents new forensic investigation methods or new medical treatments for victims of CBRN incidents New educational concepts help to foster a culture of responsibility in science and technology and strengthen governance New training methods help develop practical skills to manage CBRN risks more effectively The book concludes that there is a growing need for a holistic framework towards CBRN risk mitigation Traditional arms control mechanisms such as global regional or bilateral treaties and export controls are still needed as they provide a necessary legal and institutional framework But laws and technology denial alone will not suffice and institutional mechanisms can at times be weak Given the pace of technological progress and the diffusion of critical knowledge tools and materials policymakers must accept that CBRN risks cannot be eliminated altogether Instead society has to learn to manage these risks and develop resilience against them This requires a softer broadly based multi stakeholder approach involving governments industry the research and development communities educators and civil society Furthermore educating policymakers that cutting edge technologies may seriously affect global strategic stability could create incentives for developing a more creative and contemporary arms control strategy that fosters cooperation rather than incremental polarisation
