What you will learn

Upon completing this course you will have the skills to:

- Plan efficient customer itineraries using polished geography skills
- Arrange travel using standard industry coding and GDS technology
- Advise customers on travel document and health requirements, and share the benefits of travel insurance
- Assess features and benefits of travel products, including rail, car rental, cruise, accommodations, and tours
- Price and ticket basic air itineraries

Who should attend

This course is recommended for:

- Travel agents
- Airline reservation agents
- Tour operators
- Call center agents

Key topics

- The travel and tourism industry and the travel professional
- Geography in travel planning
- Travel documents and departure formalities
- Travel and tourism products and services
- Air fares, ticketing and GDS functionality

This course combines textbook and e-learning materials. A CD-ROM is included in this course study kit.

Additional info

The 13 modules in the Foundation Level will provide you with an understanding of the travel and tourism industry, the practicalities of the travel professional's role in this industry, the importance of exceeding customer expectations, and the role of technology in the travel industry.

In addition, you will become familiar with related subjects such as industry regulations, codes, world geography, air fares and ticketing including e-ticketing, visa and health requirements, as well as tour programmes.

For self-study students, about 170 hours of intensive study are required to complete the Foundation course. Students studying at an IATA Authorised Training Centre could expect a longer period of study.
