Life Science Chapter 1 Challenges:

Education and Ethics in the Life Sciences Brian Rappert, 2010-06-01 At the start of the twenty first century warnings have been raised in some quarters about how by intent or by mishap advances in biotechnology and related fields could aid the spread of disease Science academics medical organisations governments security analysts and others are among those that have sought to raise concern EDUCATION AND ETHICS IN THE LIFE SCIENCES examines a variety of attempts to bring greater awareness to security concerns associated with the life sciences It identifies lessons from practical initiatives across a wide range of national contexts as well as more general reflections about education and ethics The eighteen contributors bring together perspectives from a diverse range of fields including politics virology sociology ethics security studies microbiology and medicine as well as their experiences in universities think tanks and government In offering their assessment about what must be done and by whom each chapter addresses a host of challenging practical and conceptual questions EDUCATION AND ETHICS IN THE LIFE SCIENCES will be of interest to those planning and undertaking training activities in other areas In asking how education and ethics are being made to matter in an emerging area of social unease it will also be of interest to those with more general concerns about professional conduct

Meeting the Challenges to Measurement in an Era of Accountability Henry Braun, 2016-01-29 Under pressure and support from the federal government states have increasingly turned to indicators based on student test scores to evaluate teachers and schools as well as students themselves The focus thus far has been on test scores in those subject areas where there is a sequence of consecutive tests such as in mathematics or English language arts with a focus on grades 4 8 Teachers in these subject areas however constitute less than thirty percent of the teacher workforce in a district Comparatively little has been written about the measurement of achievement in the other grades and subjects This volume seeks to remedy this imbalance by focusing on the assessment of student achievement in a broad range of grade levels and subject areas with particular attention to their use in the evaluation of teachers and schools in all It addresses traditional end of course tests as well as alternative measures such as portfolios exhibitions and student learning objectives In each case issues related to design and development psychometric considerations and validity challenges are covered from both a generic and a content specific perspective The NCME Applications of Educational Measurement and Assessment series includes edited volumes designed to inform research based applications of educational measurement and assessment Edited by leading experts these books are comprehensive and practical resources on the latest developments in the field The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license
