Epistemic Justice, Mindfulness, and the Environmental Humanities Janelle Adsit, 2021-11-29 Epistemic Justice Mindfulness and the Environmental Humanities explores how contemplative pedagogies and mindfulness can be used in the classroom to address epistemic and environmental injustice In recent years there has been a groundswell of interest in contemplative pedagogies in higher education with increasing attention from the environmental sciences environmental humanities and sustainability studies Teachers and writers have demonstrated how mindfulness practices can be a key to anti oppression and anti racist efforts both in and out of the classroom Not all forms of contemplative pedagogy are suited for this anti colonial and anti oppressive resistance however Simply adopting mindfulness practices in the classroom is not enough to dislodge and dismantle white supremacy in higher education Epistemic Justice Mindfulness and the Environmental Humanities advocates for mindfulness practices that affirm multiple epistemologies and cultural traditions Written for educators in the environmental humanities and other related disciplines the chapters interrogate the western uptake of mindfulness practices and suggest anti colonial and anti oppressive methods for bringing mindfulness into the classroom The chapters also discuss what mindfulness practices have to offer to the pursuit of a culturally relevant pedagogy This highly applied and practical text will be an insightful read for educators in the environmental humanities and across the liberal arts disciplines

Poetry and Mindfulness Bryan Walpert, 2017-11-01 At a time when the Humanities are under threat this book offers a defense of poetry within the context of growing interest in mindfulness in business health care and education The book argues that the benefits and insights mindfulness provides are also cultivated by the study of poetry These benefits include a focus on the present the ability to see through scripts and habits a rethinking of subjectivity and the development of ecological or systems thinking Bryan Walpert employs close readings of traditional and experimental poetry and draws on scientific studies of the effects of mindfulness or reading literature on the brain It argues the skills that poetry like mindfulness cultivates are useful beyond the page or classroom and ultimately are necessary to engage with such global issues as the environmental crisis

Olson, Gustav Kuhn, 2016-11-18 Magicians have dazzled audiences for many centuries however few researchers have studied how let alone why most tricks work The psychology of magic is a nascent field of research that examines the underlying mechanisms that conjurers use to achieve enchanting phenomena including sensory illusions misdirection of attention and the appearance of mind control and nuanced persuasion Most studies to date have focused on either the psychological principles involved in watching and performing magic or neuromagic the neural correlates of such phenomena Whereas performers sometimes question the contributions that modern science may offer to the advancement of the magical arts the history of magic reveals that scientific discovery often charts new territories for magicians In this research topic we sketch out the symbiotic relationship between psychological science and the art of magic On the one hand magic can inform psychology with particular benefits for the cognitive social developmental and transcultural components of behavioural science Magicians have a large and robust set of effects that most researchers rarely exploit Incorporating these effects into existing experimental even clinical paradigms paves the road to innovative trajectories in the study of human behaviour For example magic provides an elegant way to study the behaviour of participants who may believe they had made choices that they actually did not make Moreover magic fosters a more ecological approach to experimentation whereby scientists can probe participants in more natural environments compared to the traditional lab based settings Examining how magicians consistently influence spectators for example can elucidate important aspects in the study of persuasion trust decision making and even processes spanning authorship and agency Magic thus offers a largely underused armamentarium for the behavioural scientist and clinician On the other hand psychological science can advance the art of magic The psychology of deception a relatively understudied field explores the intentional creation of false beliefs and how people often go wrong Understanding how to methodically exploit the tenuous twilight zone of human vulnerabilities perceptual logical emotional and temporal becomes all the more revealing when top down influences including expectation symbolic thinking and framing join the fray Over the years science has permitted magicians to concoct increasingly effective routines and to elicit heightened feelings of wonder from audiences Furthermore on occasion science leads to the creation of novel effects or the refinement of existing ones based on systematic methods For example by simulating a specific card routine using a series of computer stimuli researchers have decomposed the effect and reconstructed it into a more effective routine Other magic effects depend on meaningful psychological knowledge such as which type of information is difficult to retain or what changes capture attention Behavioural scientists measure and study these factors By combining analytical findings with performer intuitions psychological science begets effective magic Whereas science strives on parsimony and independent replication of results magic thrives on reproducing the same effect with multiple methods to obscure parsimony and minimise detection This Research Topic explores the seemingly orthogonal approaches of scientists and magicians by highlighting the crosstalk as well as rapprochement between psychological science and the art of deception Insights in Aging and Public Health: 2021 Marcia G. Ory, Matthew Lee Smith, 2022-07-05
