

Streetcar named desire and macbeth critical lens Essay Example

There are many situations in life which are related to reality and they can be illusional because of your own perspective. a quote that supports this is " Reality is that which, when you stop believing it, doesn't go away". This quote explains that reality is something that even if you don't believe in it or if you don't think its true it still doesn't go away. You can't deny the fact that that fact is true no matter what. You can make a situation unreal just because of the way you think or you don't want to face the truth. This quote also explains that you can't deny the harshness of the truth by consoling yourself. Some people in their lives go through many changes and many phases and they have to face many bitter truths but they try to make it a lie in their own mind by saying that its nothing or such thing like that doesn't exist. In fact they are consoling themselves because they know that the harsh truth will really hurt them.

This quote is true because I have seen many people go through a lot of situations like that and they just don't want to face the reality. There are many works of literature that support this quote. The first work of literature that supports this quote is a play by Tennessee Williams " A Streetcar Named Desire" and another play "Macbeth" by William Shakespeare tells about the characters about how they do many things without thinking and then they just don't want to face the situation.

The play " A Streetcar Named Desire" by Tennessee Williams confirms that the quote is related to the play. In this play, it shows a story of two sisters. One of the sister Blanche is unmarried and has a dark past which she hides from everyone. Her life is full of lies even lies that her sister doesn't know. Her sister Stella is married to Stanley and is pregnant. Her sister arrives and many things get revealed about her past. In the story Blanche gets mixed up with a lot of men and her sister does not know about this. When Blanche arrives at Stella's home, her husband finds out all the truth about her and tells Mitch who was dating her sister in law. She gets mixed up with all these men because she had a dark past about herself which was getting married to a boy named Allen who turned to be gay and then he shot himself when his life found out about this. She gets mixed up with all these men including a seventeen year old boy because she is running away from her past. She doesn't want to face her past and thats why she became involved with everyone. A second example, is that Blanche's brother in law rapes her in the end and she tells her sister about it. Her sister Stella doesn't believe her and this becomes an emotional breakdown for her.

This situation shows that Stella is living in a illusion that her husband is perfect when in reality he is not. Stella is living in an illusion because her husband always shows her that he loves when in fact he is shrewd from inside. Th
