(b) A compound Poisson risk model is used to model the total claims S experienced by an insurance company over one year, of the form:

$$S = X_1 + X_2 + \dots + X_N$$

where X_i represents the size of claim i and N is the total number of claims, following a Poisson distribution. Each claim size X_i is known to be distributed according to $X_i \sim \text{Gamma}(\alpha, \lambda)$. In the 8 preceding years the average number of claims per year has been 18. Maximum likelihood estimates of α and λ have been calculated as 1100 and 6 respectively. Calculate the mean and variance of total claims S .

[4]

(c) For a random variable X that is exponential distributed with rate parameter α , derive from first principles the form of the maximum likelihood estimate of α and its variance and calculate their values based on $n = 10$ sample values of X that sum to 200.
