

FMCSA Guideline for OSA *

- Narcolepsy and sleep apnea account for about 70% of EDS. Persistent or chronic sleep disorders causing EDS can be a significant risk to the driver and the public. The examiner should consider general certification criteria at the initial and follow-up examinations:
  - Severity and frequency of EDS
  - Presence or absence of warning of attacks
  - Possibility of sleep during driving
  - Degree of symptomatic relief with treatment
  - Compliance with treatment.
