The Cell Cycle - Mitosis

Stages of the Cell Cycle (I - PMAT - C)

Interphase
Interphase has three parts - G₁, S, and G₂. The cell grows during G₁, replicates DNA during S, and prepares for division during G₂.

Prophase
Chromatin condenses into visible chromosomes. Centrioles move to opposite sides of the cell and spindle fibers begin to form.

Metaphase
Chromosomes line up along the cell's equator. Each chromosome's sister chromatids separate to form two daughter chromosomes.

Anaphase
Sister chromatids are pulled apart. The pieces are moved to opposite sides of the cell and recombine.

Telophase
The chromosomes reach the ends of the cell. Nuclear envelopes form around the two sets of chromosomes.

Section 6.2 - The Cell Cycle and Mitosis

Cell Growth
Most cells are very small, between 1-100 µm in diameter. (For comparison, a strand of human hair is 20 µm in width.) Cells are small because they are limited by their surface area to volume ratio. As a cell grows, its volume increases faster than its surface area, and it begins to have difficulty transporting nutrients and waste. By remaining small, cells can manage a more efficient internal transport and communication system that means that when a cell reaches its size limit, it must either stop growing or divide. The process of growing and dividing is known as the cell cycle.
