Pricing or benchmarking is a process of evaluating the performance of a financial company's products and services or systems against other businesses considered to be at the top of their field by applying a measurement of best in performance. This book includes contributions from the leading global experts in the field who tackle topics such as whether the Islamic financial system has been dependent on the LIBOR EURIBOR in its benchmarking exercises to date and thus whether it will be affected negatively by the predicted non-existence of the LIBOR EURIBOR from 2021 onwards. They also address the question of whether the Islamic financial system requires benchmarking of its products and services and consider the emergence of Shar'ah justified benchmarking in today's Islamic financial system. Additionally, they look at how benchmarking formulas should be adapted to ensure the satisfaction of customers within the principles of Maqasid al-Shar'ah. It takes a legal and institutional approach to the subject which readers will find particularly valuable as there are various forms of Islamic finance institutions that do not conform to established models in the finance industry. Furthermore, there are emerging business models that will benefit from this line of investigation. This book offers a timely analysis of these issues and redresses the existing misconceptions and misinterpretations pertaining to benchmarking in an Islamic finance context and as such provides guidance and strategies for future directions. It will appeal to researchers of Islamic banking, finance and insurance as well as practitioners, particularly standard setting bodies, regulators and policy makers.

China is at a critical juncture in its economic transformation as it tries to rebalance what is generally seen as an exhausted growth model. A unifying theme across the reforms that will deliver this transformation is that it can no longer be achieved by raising the amount of physical investment and government direction of resource allocation. Instead, China is building a new set of policy frameworks that will allow markets to function more effectively, not unfettered markets but markets that work efficiently in line with broad social and other policy goals and in a sustainable way. Hence, China is now building a new soft infrastructure that is the institutional plumbing that underpins and guides the functioning of markets as the key organizing principle toward achieving sustained economic and social progress. Against this background, this volume provides policymakers, academics and the public with valuable information about policies and institutions in China today. It also looks at the road ahead and key principles that can help China in navigating it. The book focuses on issues crucial in the country's transformation such as tax policy and administration, social security state owned enterprise reform medium term expenditure frameworks the role of local government finances capital account liberalization and renminbi internationalization As China moves toward a more price based allocation of resources strengthening monetary policy frameworks and financial sector regulation will be particularly important in channeling resources to the most productive sectors and minimizing the risks of financial sector stress Also upgrading statistical frameworks will be critical for macroeconomic policymaking and investors
