Language Across the Curriculum & CLIL in English as an Additional Language (EAL) Contexts Angel M.Y. Lin, 2016-09-15

This book will be of interest to a broad readership regardless of whether they have a background in sociolinguistics functional linguistics or genre theories It presents an accessible meta language i e a language for talking about language that is workable and usable for teachers and researchers from both language and content backgrounds thus facilitating collaboration across content and language subject panels Chapters 1 to 3 lay the theoretical foundation of this common meta language by critically reviewing systematically presenting and integrating key theoretical resources for teachers and researchers in this field In turn Chapters 4 to 7 focus on issues in pedagogy and assessment and on school based approaches to LAC and CLIL drawing on both research studies and the experiences of front line teachers and school administrators Chapter 8 provides a critical and reflexive angle on the field by asking difficult questions regarding how LAC and CLIL are often situated in contexts characterized by inequality of access to the linguistic and cultural capitals where the local languages of the students are usually neglected or viewed unfavourably in relation to the L2 in mainstream society and where teachers are usually positioned as recipients of knowledge rather than makers of knowledge In closing Chapter 9 reviews the state of the art in the field and proposes directions for future inquiry

Strategies and Methods of Scaffolding Text-based sources for Weak(er) ESL-Learners of English Bjoern Schubert, 2014-04-11 Research Paper postgraduate from the year 2013 in the subject Didactics for the subject English Pedagogy Literature Studies grade 2 0 Humboldt University of Berlin Anglistik und Amerikanistik course Bilingualer Sachfachunterricht als content and language integrated learning CLIL language English abstract In this paper I wish to explore and apply a selected range of the possible strategies and methods of scaffolding text based sources for weaker learners or learners simply not as privileged by their social background If one looks at the present educational landscape of Berlin one will come across a selection of bilingual schools Ones where native speakers teach nearly the entire curriculum in English and a large range of schools offering bilingual classes or modules The majority of schools still do not offer any bilingual education opportunities 2 Therefore the benefits of bilingual education German English seem to be only for privileged students cf Zydati 2007 though there are a few exceptions throughout Germany Cf Rabe 2013 The overall amount material available for bilingual education and the teachers being educated for it are still a small portion in comparison to the overall amount of material and teachers available in both English and History monolingual German in primary and secondary school curriculum The actual material being published often still lacks the degree of text based scaffolding described in theory by Pilzecker 1997a and Wildhage 2003 Interestingly many ordinary textbooks of English now offer very brief bilingual modules The first part of this paper briefly explores some of the linguistic background of scaffolding text based material in bilingual teaching of history in German Sekundarstufe 1 In the second part of this paper I will apply my findings to a short bilingual module offered in a contemporary textbook English G21 D4 year 8 Erweiterte Ausgabe by the German textbook publishing company Cornelsen Looking at a bilingual module in this exemplary textbook G21 one wonders how much language related scaffolding was included by the editors due to the real didactical needs of the learners and might have been left out in the process of laying out the textbook and the limitations of space in a due to content

Interaction & Pedagogy of Indonesian Vocational English Language Master Teachers Akhyar Rido,2020 Lesson Project on Vocabulary Teaching. Can the Performance of Students in Vocabulary Tests be Improved through Different Vocabulary Introduction? Hülya Atasoyi,2016-08-18 Seminar paper from the year 2015 in the subject Didactics for the subject English Pedagogy Literature Studies language English abstract Around 30 years ago vocabulary was considered a neglected feature of second language research Nation 2012 93 Recent research however indicates an enormous growth in research on vocabulary ebd Vocabulary is essential to communicate effectively Nowadays teachers often test their students language skills in vocabulary tests in which the students have to fill in the correct English translation for the German word Therefore many students learn vocabulary through direct translation and without any comprehensible context but is this kind of learning appropriate From my point of view vocabulary learning is a continual process of encountering new words in meaningful and comprehensible context Harmon et al 2009 cit in Bintz 2011 45 Even if students are performing well in vocabulary tests it does not mean that they can apply the words in context Therefore my lesson project will deal with the following question Can the performance of students in vocabulary tests be improved through different vocabulary introduction While focusing on different vocabulary introduction I will also consider a meaningful and comprehensible context so that students will be able to apply the words which they have learned in new context First of all some theoretical positions and beliefs of vocabulary teaching will be depicted especially the main jobs of the vocabulary teacher Nation 2012 93 will be discussed Various methods of the vocabulary introduction e g creating a board game word cards etc will be described Students performance on vocabulary will be tested by various vocabulary tests with meaningful context Additionally the aims as well as the survey instruments and methods of the lesson project will be given Furthermore anticipated challenges and possible solutions will be described at the end of Part A Research and Theories After having presented the theoretical background of the lesson project this paper will have a specific look at the Action Research Part B of the lesson project in order to establish a connection between the theoretical context and the practical application Therefore based on the lesson project at the Geschwister Scholl Gesamtschule in Moers 8th grade a survey will be conducted at the end of the lesson project which is also described in chapter 4 The implementation of the lesson project its results and a discussion will be given in Part B

Reflexive Pronouns. The Acquisition of "Self-Forms" by German Learners of English as L2 Deborah Heinen, 2017-03-13 Seminar paper from the year 2016 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Linguistics grade 1 0 University of Bonn language English abstract Prior linguistic knowledge it seems plausible that the acquisition of a second language can be influenced by the learner's knowledge of structures and rules of his or her first language Especially similarities between languages are probably tending to either facilitate the learning process or to impede it cf Gundel Tarone 1994 87 This cross linguistic influence is called language transfer which can be described as negative when the application of L1 structures or rules on a L2 utterance leads to a linguistically incorrect expression cf Saville Troike 2012 19 Given the fact that similarities between languages might impede the learning process of the L2 the work in hand takes a closer look at reflexive pronouns in English and German As self forms in English and sich forms in German look quite similar but differ in their use they appear as a possible source of error for German learners of English Therefore the leading question of the paper is whether L2 English learners recognize the differences in the use of self forms in English and the use of sich in German The hypothesis is that based on their L1 knowledge German learners of English are likely to make use of reflexive pronouns more often than necessary In other words it is assumed that a negative language transfer is likely to occur due to the formal similarities between the L1 and L2 Further information on the theoretical basis of the study will be given in the second chapter followed by the part on methodology that includes information on the informants the research instruments and the data collection procedure In the following two chapters the results of the study will be presented and with regard to possible explanations and limitations discussed Finally the main findings of the paper will be summarized The reason for conducting this study is in the first place that the problem of language transfer is of great importance for the learner's learning process of English as L2 Especially teachers of English should be aware of common sources of error so they might be able to predict possible linguistic problems and support their students at their best to avoid such mistakes cf Odlin 1990 4 Furthermore previous studies in the field of cross linguistic examinations on reflexive pronouns mainly referred to binding conditions and the like whereas this paper deals with the frequency and correct application of reflexives by learners of English as L2 Selected Papers Basikin,2017 Proceedings from a conferene jointly held by Asia TEFL and TEFLIN Teaching English as a Foreign Language in Indonesia Nigerian Journal of Sociolinguistics ,1989 Journal of Educational Foundations ,2013-10 Teaching and Learning of English in the 21st Century Muhammad Kamarul Kabilan,2021 Linguistics and Language Behavior Abstracts ,2005-04 Debates in Modern Languages Education Patricia Driscoll,Ernesto Macaro,Ann Swarbrick,2014-01-03 Debates in Modern Languages Education offers a comprehensive introduction and synthesis of the major themes and research evidence in language learning and teaching today providing an up to date authoritative review of traditional and contemporary issues in language teaching With chapters by leading experts in the field thematic sections explore and consider the importance of a wide range of different knowledge bases and skills for effective teaching how to become expert practitioners approaches to teaching with reference to relevant theories complex constructs and empirical research the innovations and ideas that shape and will shape the discipline for the next decade Each thought provoking chapter is supported by reference to further reading and additional material to encourage deeper exploration which will help the reader to fully engage in the debates presented This book is a valuable resource for any student or practising teacher engaged in initial teacher education continuing professional development and Masters level study Universal Dictionary of the English Language Robert Hunter,Charles Morris,1897 The Modern Eclectic Dictionary of the English Language Robert Hunter,Charles Morris,1905 The Modern World Dictionary of the English Language ... ,1906 Indian Trade Journal ,2012-04
