

Answer Key – Food, Inc. 2 Worksheet
Answers may vary for some questions.

1. How did the COVID-19 pandemic reveal weaknesses in the U.S. food system?

The pandemic showed that the food system is highly centralized and fragile. Supermarket shelves went empty, animals were euthanized because slaughterhouses closed, and workers faced unsafe conditions, proving that the system is not resilient during crises.

2. What role did corporate consolidation play in making the system less resilient?

Because a handful of corporations dominate meatpacking and food processing, when one plant or company shut down, the entire supply chain was disrupted. Fewer companies controlling the system means fewer backup options.

3. What happened at the Tyson slaughterhouse in Waterloo, Iowa, during the pandemic?

At least half of the 2,500 workers contracted COVID-19, and some even collapsed or vomited on the floor. Despite the outbreak, Tyson kept the plant open, showing disregard for worker safety.

4. Why does the film criticize Tyson's use of the Defense Production Act?

Tyson lobbied the government to use the Defense Production Act to keep plants open, which forced sick and scared workers back on the job. The film argues this was a misuse of government power that prioritized corporate profit over human life.

5. How much of every food dollar goes to farmers today?

Farmers now receive less than 15 cents of every food dollar. The majority of the money goes to corporations that process, brand, and sell food.

6. What are ultra-processed foods (UPFs), and why are they so profitable?

UPFs are cheap, heavily processed foods made mostly from corn, soy, sugar, and additives. They are profitable because they cost very little to make, can be sold at high margins, and keep consumers hooked.

7. How do ultra-processed foods affect human health?

They contribute to obesity, diabetes, heart disease, and other chronic illnesses because they are high in sugar, salt, and unhealthy fats, while being low in nutrition.

8. How does American UPF consumption compare to Italy's?

Americans get about 58% of their daily calories from UPFs, while Italians only get about 17%. This shows that cultural food traditions play a big role in diet and health.

9. Why does the film say the government has failed to regulate corporate power?

Although laws exist to protect consumers and workers, the government often fails to enforce them. This allows corporations to grow bigger and more powerful without accountability.
