Accent and Teacher Identity in Britain Alex Baratta,2018-04-05 In British society we celebrate diversity and champion equality across many areas such as race and religion However where do British accents stand Do notions such as common or posh still exist regarding certain accents to the extent that people are deemed fit or not for certain professions despite their qualifications Accent and Teacher Identity in Britain explores these questions and Alex Baratta s research shows that those with accents regional to the North and Midlands are most likely to be told by mentors and senior staff to essentially sound less regional whereas those from the Home Counties are less likely to be given instructions to change their accent at all Baratta investigates the notion of linguistic power in terms of which accents appear to be favoured within the context of teacher training and from the perspective of teachers who feel they lack power in the construction of their linguistic teacher identity He also questions modifying one s accent to meet someone else s standard for what is linguistically appropriate in terms of how such a modified accent impact on personal identity Is accent modification regarded by the individual neutrally or is it seen as selling out
