

Electricity and Why it Moves

Electricity

Electricity is moving electrons; Protons can't move.

Protons are held together in the nucleus by the strong nuclear force, the strongest force in nature, but electrons can move.

Electricity comes from electrons moving between atoms.

Charge

Objects can be positive, negative, or neutral. The unit of charge is the coulomb (C).

Electric Force

Any two charges feel a force between them. Electric force depends on the types of charges, the distance between the charges, and the amounts of the two charges.

Positive hydrogen atoms in water are attracted to the negatively charged balloon, causing the water stream to bend slightly toward the balloon.

Just like gravity, electric force increases as distance decreases. Closer charges: more force.

Electric force increases if either of the charges increases. More charge: more force.

Separating Charges

Naturally, objects are neutral. Work must be done to separate charges. Separating charges cause a charge difference and the electric force tries to move the charges back to neutral.

When two insulators rub, charges move between them, causing a separation of charge (static electricity) and an electric force.

If there is a difference of charge electricity can move between objects. A big enough difference can cause electricity to arc (jump a gap). Bigger differences of charge allow bigger arcs.

No difference in charge—electricity can not move.

Batteries

- +

Batteries cause electrons to move by separating charges in chemicals. When connected by wires the charge can flow, eventually neutralizing the battery.

Ground

Ground (the earth) can take or give an infinite number of electrons. Ground is electrically neutral. Both positive and negative charges will neutralize when grounded.

To ground something you can often touch it to a pipe. Pipes are usually connected to ground somewhere in the building.
