

ANATOMY OF A PRELIMINARY TITLE REPORT

---

The format for most preliminary title reports as issued by title insurance companies is consistently set forth in three sections, referred to as Schedules 'A', 'B', and 'C'. This publication strives to inform the consumer how to read a preliminary title report, and what "red flags" (indicated by a ?) to look for in each section. This publication in no way offers legal advice or stands in place of professional legal advice.

Schedule A

Vesting and Estate

The statement of vesting reflects the current title to the property subsequently described in Schedule C according to the information found in the public records. The statement may include the titleholder's marital status, tenancy, registration information (if the property is held by a corporation or partnership, etc.), and the degree of ownership interest or tenure (fee simple, leasehold, etc.).

- ? Are the titleholders identified consistent with those on the DROA?
- ? Is the estate tenure consistent with that indicated on the DROA?

Time of Search

The report includes a search of the public records from the source of title, which may be as early as 1846, up to the current date and time. The date and time of the report shows that all pertinent public records have been searched including all public records on file up to the minute indicated.

Customer Service Contact

The direct telephone number of the escrow company representative who may be contacted with any questions relating to the title report.

Signature

The authorized signature of the escrow company representative who reviewed and approved the findings contained in the report.

File Number

The escrow company's reference number.
