The ST01 Series and EI600 Series are non-inductive, Surge and CFL/LED compatible. In addition, these timers can handle any load type and require no neutral-wire connection, making them ideal for any application, regardless of complexity.

- The timer is battery-powered and does not need AC power for initial setup and programming. For new installations, it is recommended that you set up and program your timer before installing it.
- The battery controls the ON/OFF function (holding "sound") and maintains the time and date. The screen flashes BATT when the battery strength is low. When replacing the battery, disconnect AC power. You will have a few minutes to insert new batteries before the date and time settings are lost. All other settings will remain in memory, without battery or AC power.
- Each ON or OFF setting is an event. Each event must be programmed separately.
- The MODE menu includes SETUP, PGM (program), AUTO (automated PAND periods), and MAN (manual). AUTO and RAND modes do not appear on the menu options until the time of day is set and at least one ON or OFF event is programmed.
- All menu help options appear when you get to the end of the menu. When in a specific Mode, press ON/OFF to loop within that Mode.
- When using the + or - buttons to change a flashing setting, hold the button to make the numbers scroll faster.
- When advancing to the next setting, the timer automatically saves the data from the previous screen whether you changed a setting or not. All settings save automatically after five minutes.
