Abstract

This essay asks the question, is the illness of obesity a socially constructed health concept within a western, liberalistic paradigm and context and is it possible, obesity can be envisioned as a symptom of a modern lifestyle process? This essay discusses how obesity has become a chronic health problem within a modern western society and endeavours to explain, why a modern, western liberalistic society, finds it hard to diagnose, what can cause the health condition- obesity.

Obesity and Health:

Why is it, that health is such a major concern for humans? Is it because health for humans, and all other living things for that matter, is such an essential primordial process in staying alive? The answer of course is yes. The next question of sociological importance is to what extent, is any illness, socially constructed? Hence this is the question I am to endeavour to answer in this essay. Infact I will argue that from a social constructivist philosophical perspective, that the illness of obesity is a socially constructed health concept and that within a western, liberalistic paradigm and context, obesity tends to be envisioned as a symptom of a modern lifestyle process. I will endeavour to elaborate as to how obesity has become a chronic health problem within a modern western society and endeavour to explain, as why a modern, western liberalistic society, finds it hard to diagnose what causes the health condition- obesity. First, what in general terms, is obesity? According to the early 17th century Doctor, Tobias Venner and his enlightened, liberalistic philosophical paradigm; obesity is: "An individual disease process, of a fat an gross habit of body, which is far worse than a lean individual body, as it is more prone to become sick." pp.19-20. (Gilman, 1998, pp.19-20) (Blackburn, 2005, pp. 209-210). However from a social constructivist, philosophical paradigm perspective, obesity is seen as a socially constructed illness, which is something quite different entirely (Blackburn, 2005, pp.158, 342). Indeed according to the Political Scientist Oliver, a social constructivist, philosophical paradigm, tends to envisage health concerns, such as obesity within a social context, so as to fully understand and identify the health issue concerned (Oliver, 2006, pp. 611-626) (Haralamobos, Holborn, 1991, pp. 2-5, 19, 758-761, 768, 799-804). Infact within the context of this essay, according to the Professors

Cowan, Elizabeth Cowan Neeld, 1983 Three Essays on the Economics of Health Yleana Pamela Ortiz Arevalo, 2007 This thesis consists of three essays that investigate issues related to the economics of health All three studies examine the case of Mexico and draw on the first wave of the Mexican Family Life Survey 2002 The first two essays focus on school age children and the second on women In the first essay I look for evidence of increasing overweight evaluated in terms of body mass index BMI and examine possible contributing factors I find that prevalence of overweight increased for both boys and girls in recent years To look for factors that may contribute to this increase I propose a theoretical model of a mother s allocation of food and time from which I obtain her reduced form demand for weight adequacy of her child I empirically estimate this demand measured as the probability that a child is overweight Results indicate that contributing factors to the growth of overweight in children are i increases in mother s BMI and in community median BMI of male adults and ii particularly for boys less presence of father at home and an increase in maternal labor supply In the second essay I study the effects of maternal education on hemoglobin levels and possible consequences of anemia among children Childhood anemia may impair physical growth weaken the ability to fight infections affect the development of motor and learning capacities and reduce physical performance and endurance All of these have potential negative consequences on school functioning accumulation of human capital and future labor productivity Results point out to positive effects of maternal education I find evidence of maternal education being endogenous and possibly contaminated with measurement error There is evidence suggesting that maternal education might be related to public health services through a substitution effect Results also reveal that mother s labor supply is negatively associated with hemoglobin levels In the third essay I examine whether sexual and reproductive behavior of Mexican women changed due to public initiatives promoting birth control and family planning launched in the 1970s I use a variety of indicators to characterize sexual and reproductive behavior first sexual encounter first and second pregnancies and utilization of contraceptive methods To identify the effects of public programs I make use of individual exposure to in school sexual education and to birth control promotion in public health facilities Results suggest that in school sex education increased the hazard of first sexual intercourse but did not affect the hazard of first pregnancy Both sex education in schools and exposure to campaigns in public health facilities decreased the hazard of a second pregnancy There is also some evidence supporting positive effects of sex education on the use of contraception methods Intro to College Writing Cawelti-Eblen, 1988-09 The Longman Writer Judith Nadell, John Langan, Eliza A.
