

Chapter 1

Study Guide: Natural Selection and the Evolution of Behavior

Introduction

- Biologists study animal behavior guided by Darwin's theory of evolution by natural selection.
- Darwin observed that some individuals within species leave more descendants than others, leading to the gradual reshaping of species.
- Natural selection requires three conditions: variation, differential reproductive success, and heredity.
- Fitness, a measure of reproductive success, is central to understanding traits' evolution.
- Heritable traits associated with successful survival and reproduction are called adaptations.

Evidence for Natural Selection

- Darwin provided evidence of heritable variation in traits and high mortality rates within species.
- The conditions for natural selection are present in all living organisms.
- Selective breeding in domesticated animals demonstrated the power of natural selection.

Evolution at the Gene Level

- Genes play a crucial role in evolution as they replicate themselves.
- Organisms serve as vehicles for replicators (genes), and natural selection acts on genes.
- Evolution involves gene frequency change within populations and is driven by various factors, including natural selection, mutation, migration, and genetic drift.

The Mechanism of Natural Selection

- Natural selection is not guided; it's driven by individuals who reproduce more successfully.
- It is a process of "descent with modification."
