

Figure 146 – User Access

Step 1 Configure your RADIUS server to use the "Billing-Class-of-Service" attribute as defined in the H3CSPY vendor specific attribute set (see appendix: Vendor Specific Attributes). If this BCoS attribute is set to the value "visitor_access" during the authentication response, the AC will allow routing between the WLAN port and the LAN port for this specific user.

Step 2 Use the system | access | NAV menu and enable visitor access function on isp0 (LAN).

Such a user (visitor) will have employee access rights and access to servers running in the LAN (see Figure 146 – User Access, employee traffic). In other words, the P-500 controls the client's access to the LAN via RADIUS attributes specifically addressing which clients are allowed to connect to the LAN.

Visitor access on selected interface can only function with enabled authentication. RADIUS server should authenticate the user, in order to control user's access to LAN.

If authentication is on enabled (visitor access enabled) user only receives the access to the Internet independently from his/her access rights.

System | Access | SNMP

SNMP is the standard protocol that regulates network management over the Internet. With enabled SNMP service Hotspot-in-a-Box can act as SNMP agent. To communicate with SNMP manager you must set up the same SNMP communities and identifiers on both ends: manager and agent. For more information about SNMP see Chapter 6 – SNMP Management.

Use the system | access | SNMP menu to enable/disable SNMP service or change current SNMP configuration on your P500 controller.
