A call center was experiencing customer complaints about time-on-hold and an improvement team was formed to solve the problem. The manager of the call center joined the team's first meeting and informed the team that their project would be short-lived because the obvious solution to the time-on-hold problem was to add more phone lines. With this advice as a basis, the team crafted a problem statement: "Additional phone lines are needed in order to reduce the average customer time-on-hold from 6.2 minutes to our target of 45 seconds".

Which of the following best describes the problem statement?

- a. The statement is too broad to be useful in the particular situation.
- b. The statement contains a solution.
- c. The statement is not related to the problem described above.
- d. This is a good problem statement.
- e. The statement does not fully define "time-on-hold". - Answer Answer B

The problem statement dictates that the solution is "additional phone lines". Please reference Project Charter for more information.

What will a stakeholder analysis (RACI matrix) help the team do?

- a. Narrow the project scope.
- b. Reduce the likelihood of project roadblocks.
- c. Choose effective team members.
- d. Develop a focused problem statement.
- e. Choose the most optimal project to pursue. - Answer Answer B

A stakeholder analysis is used to 1) identify those entities that will have influence on the project, 2) identify the type of influence and 3) develop strategies to realize the positive influences and reduce any roadblocks due to the negative influences. Please reference Stakeholder Analysis - RACI Matrix for more information.

When analyzing a process, which of the following terms represents the inputs?
