NATURE OF SCIENCE

The Practice of Science: SC.5.N.1.1

1. Scientific inquiry is a process through which questions are answered. Scientists look for things they want to learn about, and conduct observations or experiments to gather data and form conclusions.
2. Hypothesis: this is the prediction scientists make about what they expect will happen. For example, "Giving plants Fiji water will make them grow taller".
3. Procedures: the set of steps used in a science investigation. These must be clearly explained so that the experiment can be repeated by other scientists in the same way.
4. Observations and collecting data: It is important for scientists to take notes of their observations and collect data. Observations must be objective and based on the senses, not based on opinion. For example, "the flower looked pretty" is not a scientific observation, but "the flower had 8 red petals around a yellow center" is a scientific observation because it is objective and based on what is seen.
5. Control group: factor in an experiment that is kept the same. Without a control group, the scientist can not make comparisons and say whether there was an effect.
6. Variable: any factor that can change in an experiment. In every experiment, you have to keep all variables the same except the one you are testing.
7. Graphing data: Once a scientist collects data, the data is communicated in graphs so that it can be easily understood by others. Bar graphs are for discrete data (counting and grouping into categories) and line graphs are for continuous data (when change is observed over time).
8. Drawing conclusions: once you analyze the data you draw a conclusion, or a final statement about your original problem or question. This is where you say whether your hypothesis was supported by the data. Conclusions allow scientists to explain things they observe.

The Characteristics of Scientific Knowledge: SC.5.N.2.1

1. Science is grounded in observations that are testable.
2. Explanations must always be linked to evidence (objective observations and measurements, not opinion).
3. Scientific evidence or objective observations are not subject to personal interpretation, but rather will be the same for all people.
