Federal Guidelines For Commercial Drivers:

Commercial Driver's Licensing Susan A. Fleming, 2016-09-26 Commercial motor vehicle industry stakeholders have raised concerns that prospective drivers may face delays taking the skills test generally needed to obtain a commercial driver's license CDL. As of July 2015, state CDL programs are subject to revised federal regulations that increase federal safety standards and place new requirements on states licensing agencies. The Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA) must oversee states compliance with these rules. This report examines 1) how states administer skills tests, 2) what is known about waits for skills tests, and 3) how FMCSA oversees these tests. Tables and figures. This is a print on demand report.

Updated as of May 29, 2018. FMCSA amends its commercial driver's license CDL regulations to ease the transition of military personnel into civilian careers driving commercial motor vehicles (CMVs) by simplifying the process of obtaining a commercial learner's permit (CLP) or CDL. This final rule extends the period of time for applying for a skills test waiver from 90 days to 1 year after leaving a military position requiring the operation of a CMV. This final rule also allows a State to accept applications from active duty military personnel who are stationed in that State as well as administer the written and skills tests for a CLP or CDL. States that choose to accept such applications are required to transmit the test results electronically to the State of domicile of the military personnel. The State of domicile may issue the CLP or CDL on the basis of those results.
