Investigative Journalism S:

Different Global Journalisms Saba Bebawi, Oxana Onilov, 2023-02-10 This edited collection seeks to better understand how journalism across cultures differs presenting an in depth exploration of global practices that departs from the typical Western centric approach Journalists across the world are trained generally speaking within Western models of reporting and are taught to do so as a practice where reporters need to aspire and aim for Yet what such training is short of achieving is teaching reporters how to do journalism within their own environments In turn what is required is a method of journalistic training and practice that is reflective of the actual practice reporters encounter on the ground In order to do so a better understanding of how journalism is practised in different parts of the world the context surrounding such practices the issues and challenges associated and the positive practices that Western journalism can offer is necessary Promoting and deploying a culturally specific and politically relevant journalism this book provides just that Custodians of Conscience James S. Ettema, Theodore L. Glasser, 1998

Through in depth interviews with award winning investigative reporters and detailed analyses of the stories that brought them professional acclaim the authors explain how journalists resolve practically if not conceptually the paradox of a press that is committed to exposing wrongdoing and is at the same time adamant about its disinterest in questions of right and wrong Mass Communication and Journalism in the Digital Age Chandak
