response to the public's demand for information school boards are advised to develop a properly managed and executed public information and community relations program. Goals of such a public relations PR program are outlined as honesty in the dissemination of information, an organization oriented toward community involvement and procedures for feedback. The first of five chapters, Internal Communications: PR Begins at Home, focuses on the school district staff and students as the most effective communications vehicle available to the school board communicator. Chapter 2, Communicating with the Community, recommends visualizing the community in its components instead of as a nameless whole in order to communicate most effectively. Components include parents, senior citizens, business and industry, and opinion leaders. The third chapter, The Media Monsters or Marshmallows, examines the relationship between administrator and reporter and gives techniques and procedures to facilitate the relationship. Chapter 4, Crisis Communications, emphasizes the need to create a master plan to handle crisis situations before they occur. The fifth chapter, Bond and Budget Referenda, focuses on elements essential to a successful bond and budget campaign. Included are tipsheets on a variety of public relations topics, a public relations checklist, a school communications inventory, and six references. WTH School Public Relations, 1986. School public relations is a planned and systematic management function relying on a comprehensive two-way communication process involving both internal and external publics with a goal of stimulating a better understanding of the role, objectives, accomplishments, and needs of the organization. The function of school public relations is first to ensure that schools are identifying and serving society's needs as well as possible and second to make sure that the public knows that its needs are being met so that it will support its schools. After a preface, 14 chapters address these topics: 1 building support for schools, 2 public relations in education, 3 the current stance of education in relation to the public, 4 developing a public relations program, 5 working with parents and students, 6 involving key publics, 7 managing critical issues, 8 using new technology, 9 printed communications, 10 working with the media, 11 the basics of school public relations, 12 special problems, 13 building level public relations, and 14 evaluating the public relations investment. Included in six appendices are a code of ethics and standards for educational public relations programs and public relations professionals. Concluding the book are 61 references and an index.
