1. Air Injection

Injection on Injection for Description

The lower diaphragm chamber (2) of the injector (Fig. 126) is connected directly to the intake manifold and the upper diaphragm chamber (3) is connected to it via a delay valve (1) (Fig. 126) and (127).

In the operating mode mentioned, the lower and upper diaphragm chambers are evacuated first or, depending on the throttle valve position, first there is the lower vacuum in both diaphragm chambers, the springs (4) evacuate the upper chamber, when the air injection valve (1) activates the diaphragm (2) at the same time.

The injected air passes through a valve to the upper flow and through cross holes into the exhaust pipe.

To prevent air without water from entering into the air injection line, a check valve (5) has been installed in the line between the air filter housing and injection line.
