1.3 Mechanics

This topic covers rectilinear motion, forces, energy and power. It may be studied using applications that relate to mechanics such as sports.

This unit includes many opportunities for developing experimental skills and techniques by carrying out more than just the core practical experiments.

Candidates will be assessed on their ability to:

1	be able to use the equations for uniformly accelerated motion in one dimension: _____
2	be able to draw and interpret displacement-time, velocity-time and acceleration-time graphs
3	know the physical quantities derived from the slopes and areas of displacement-time, velocity-time and acceleration-time graphs, including cases of non-uniform acceleration and understand how to use the quantities
4	understand scalar and vector quantities and know examples of each type of quantity and recognise vector notation
