

A detailed diagram of a window's internal track mechanism. The window frame is shown in grey, with a white track running horizontally across the middle. A vertical metal rod is attached to the track, with various components like rollers and brackets. A blue rectangular box highlights the text 'Window Track' in the center of the diagram. Two black lines extend from the text box to the left and right sides of the track, pointing to the track's edges. The background shows a blurred view of green foliage through the window glass.
