Review of EPA's Integrated Risk Information System (IRIS) Process National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Environmental Studies and Toxicology, Committee to Review the IRIS Process, 2014-06-25

The Integrated Risk Information System IRIS is a program within the US Environmental Protection Agency EPA that is responsible for developing toxicologic assessments of environmental contaminants An IRIS assessment contains hazard identifications and dose response assessments of various chemicals related to cancer and noncancer outcomes Although the program was created to increase consistency among toxicologic assessments within the agency federal state and international agencies and other organizations have come to rely on IRIS assessments for setting regulatory standards establishing exposure guidelines and estimating risks to exposed populations Over the last decade the National Research Council NRC has been asked to review some of the more complex and challenging IRIS assessments including those of formaldehyde dioxin and tetrachloroethylene In 2011 an NRC committee released its review of the IRIS formaldehyde assessment Like other NRC committees that had reviewed IRIS assessments the formaldehyde committee identified deficiencies in the specific assessment and more broadly in some of EPA's general approaches and specific methods Although the committee focused on evaluating the IRIS formaldehyde assessment it provided suggestions for improving the IRIS process and a roadmap for its revision in case EPA decided to move forward with changes to the process Congress directed EPA to implement the report's recommendations and then asked the National Research Council to review the changes that EPA was making or proposing to make in response to the recommendations

Review of EPA's Integrated Risk Information System IRIS Process provides an overview of some general issues associated with IRIS assessments This report then addresses evidence identification and evaluation for IRIS assessments and discusses evidence integration for hazard evaluation and methods for calculating reference values and unit risks The report makes recommendations and considerations for future directions Overall Review of EPA's Integrated Risk Information System Process finds that substantial improvements in the IRIS process have been made and it is clear that EPA has embraced and is acting on the recommendations in the NRC formaldehyde report The recommendations of this report should be seen as building on the progress that EPA has already made
